About This Catalog

The American Civil War Catalog of ProQuest microform contains 50 research collections and over 270 serials. Inside you will find titles that support programs for all levels and disciplines within both school and non-school educational settings. The catalog also contains information about obtaining Dissertations on the American Civil War.

This catalog will be of particular interest to researchers in the fields of American History, Military History, American Studies and African-American Studies.

Two very important collections in this catalog are Regimental Histories of the American Civil War and Genealogy and Local History. Regimental Histories contains approximately 1,500 titles ranging from army reports and correspondence to "official" histories authored by individual veterans in the form of memoirs. The titles are organized by state; easily located in the collections guide; and often include unit rosters, campaign chronologies and detailed maps. Genealogy and Local History assembles and preserves genealogies, local histories, primary source materials and genealogical and local history serials. Included in the collection are published diaries and journals, biographies, veterans' facilities rosters, veterans' organization literature, reunion programs and rosters, obituaries and memorials.

This preface provides a glimpse into the contents of the American Civil War Catalog of ProQuest microform. Feel free to browse through our titles, or if you are looking for a particular research collection, please consult the index in the back. If you have questions regarding any of our titles, please contact your ProQuest representative at umisalesinfo@proquest.com, 800.521.0600 ext. 2793 or 734.761.4700 ext. 2793.

If you would like additional copies of this or any of our ProQuest Microform Catalogs, you may either make photocopies of the catalogs or contact your ProQuest representative to have printed copies mailed directly to you.

The Advantages of Microform

Despite the continually developing array of digital technologies—and sometimes because of it—information professionals at libraries and universities worldwide still rely on microform. They know it is an archival medium that will meet the needs of researchers for years to come. Microform provides many advantages including:

- New Viewer/Scanners - Images can now be easily sent to remote locations using microform viewer/scanners, which link to your computer workstations, letting you view and print articles or digitize and transmit them electronically (within Fair Use guidelines). This approach combines the unparalleled preservation and storage benefits of microform with the speed and ease of electronic access.
- Special Collections - Microform is the answer if you need hard-to-find or specialty resources. Many older newspapers and periodicals are available only in microform, and it gives your users access to complete page images from historical titles—often from the first issue forward.
- Space Savings - Microform lets you store an extensive collection of complete article images in a small amount of space. Microform takes up less than one-tenth the area of bound copies of newspapers and periodicals.
- Ownership - There is no upkeep or access fees. It uses stable, proven technology you already have, with no need for new workstations or continual software upgrades.
- Clarity and Accuracy - Microform is the answer if you need cover-to-cover clarity and accuracy. Full-image articles are essential to getting the full story.
- Complete Collection - Microform usually is the best solution if you need a complete collection fast. Maybe you're seeking accreditation or even rebuilding after a disaster. An extensive, customized collection of retrospective and current microform titles will meet the needs of your researchers quickly and efficiently.
- Support for Specialized Studies - A compact collection in microform will meet specialized research needs and still leave plenty of resources for the rest of your population. Many libraries also use microform as an added point of access for content that is most in demand.
- Durability - archived properly, it can last for generations, and there is no degradation of images.
- ProQuest Quality - ProQuest's microform images are taken directly from the original printed pages, so you always get the clarity of first-generation copies.

ProQuest Microform is the answer because we've been producing it since 1938. We not only exceed industry standards, we set them. Our microform products include thousands of newspapers and periodicals, and hundreds of research collections, many of which are not available from any other source.

Regimental Histories of the American Civil War

Fort Sumter . . . Bull Run . . . Antietam . . . Shiloh . . . Gettysburg . . . The men who fought these battles in Union and Confederate uniform left both a collective legacy and their own personal marks on American history. These Civil War soldiers bequeathed to posterity many traces of their lives and their military struggles in journals, remembrances and personal accounts. In Regimental Histories of the American Civil War, ProQuest preserves items of historical interest accumulated during and after the war: regimental rosters, transportation documents, honor rolls and casualty statistics, promotion and court martial documents, memoranda and home addresses of veterans. Infantry, artillery and cavalry divisions are also covered. The collection contains personal and family papers and records, diaries, memoirs, biographical sketches, burial records, prisoner of war accounts, regimental reunion speeches, photographs, maps and illustrations.

These records provide genealogists and Civil War historians with clues for tracing the movements of soldiers and their families during and after the war and give perspective to the evolution of the military conflict. The material begins in 1861 with early regimental recruitments and spans battles, negotiations, and the post-war lives of soldiers. The core collection is filmed at the U.S. Army Military History Institute at Carlisle Barracks in Pennsylvania. The Carlisle Barracks holdings include materials originally gathered by The U.S. Army War College, the National War College and the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, as well as materials donated by individuals. Titles filmed in Regimental Histories of the American Civil War are previously unpublished works or materials published before 1915 and cover a variety of topics. The criterion for selection of these materials is based on C.E. Dornbusch's Military Bibliography of the Civil War. A sampling of titles follows:

- History of the Fifty-Fourth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, 1863-1865 History of the New Hampshire Surgeons in the War of the Rebellion, (1906)
- Chronological List of the Laws of New York Relating to the War of the Rebellion and Veterans of That War, 1861-1910
- Lincoln's Body Guard, the Union Light Guard of Ohio (1911)
- The Confederate Capital and Hood's Texas Brigade (1894)
- Historical Sketch of the Chatham Artillery During the Confederate Struggle for Independence (1867)
- In Camp and Battle with the Washington Artillery of New Orleans (1874)
- Mosby's Rangers: A Record of the Operations of the Forty-Third Battalion Virginia Cavalry (1876)

Addams, Jane. The Jane Addams Papers

1860 - 1960

'An examination of the microfilm revealed that considerable forethought was given to filming....[Project participants] should be commended for bringing together a superb collection of primary research materials and for creating a valuable guide to those materials. Scholarship concerning Addams and numerous other subjects will clearly be enhanced.'

~ Illinois Historical Journal

Jane Addams achieved international fame through her social work, reform strategies and activities in support of world peace. She was also a role model at a time when few women had entered the public arena. Students and researchers in women's studies, American history, political science, sociology and social work can now access important resource materials through this microfilm collection. The many roles of this American heroine can be studied and compared with the course of American history from the Civil War era through industrialization and the New Deal. Some of Addams's notable roles include: founder of Hull-House, founder and president of the International League for Peace and Freedom, lobbyist and lecturer on such topics as child labor, legislation, public health, unemployment relief, social insurance and women's suffrage, first woman president of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections and author of 12 books and countless journal articles.

This collection documents the rise of her popularity and its temporary decline when she was reviled as a traitor for her advocacy of peace at a time when public sentiment favored war. Only when she was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1931 – four years before her death – were her anti-war actions vindicated in the minds of the general public. The Jane Addams Papers is organized into five parts:

- Correspondence – Composed primarily of letters, including telegrams and postcards. Correspondents include people such as Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Ida Tarbell and Emily Greene Balch
- Documents – Includes personal documents, educational records, diaries, calendars, Addams's writings and documents relating to her death
- Writings – Featured are manuscripts and published versions of articles, speeches and statements
- Hull-House Association Records – This section documents the history of Hull-House from its founding in 1889 through Addams's death in 1935. Included are minutes, bylaws, contracts, ledgers, clippings, scrapbooks, reports and inventories
- Clippings File – Filmed from the holdings of the Swarthmore College Peace Foundation, this section features newspaper and periodical clippings about Addams and her career, including many written after her death.

The more than 120,000 pages of documents in this collection represent a primary research source and open a new chapter in any comprehensive study of Jane Addams and her remarkable influence on the era during which she lived.

Buchanan, James. The Papers of James Buchanan

1781 - 1893

When James Buchanan was elected President of the United States in 1856, he inherited a nation deeply divided by the fundamental issues of slavery and states' rights. Historians and political scientists have long debated whether or not the Confederate secession could have been avoided if Buchanan had not been a classical political thinker. The James Buchanan Papers offers a comprehensive research collection for the study of this and other issues. Since Buchanan's life spanned the federal era of United States history, from Washington's first term until the Civil War, researchers can also study the entire early history of the U.S. through the perspective of one of its presidents. Buchanan's triumphs as well as his alleged failings can be viewed in these documents. Included in the material are:

- Incoming correspondence
- Outgoing correspondence, speeches, notes and memoranda
- Third-party correspondence and miscellaneous papers
- Drafts and manuscript books by Buchanan and his biographers
- Printed material
- Business papers
- Legal papers and indexes

While slavery raised the bitterest emotions during Buchanan's term as president, he also faced other volatile issues such as the question of a protective tariff, free land in the West and the distribution of federal funds. This important collection offers students of history, political science, political history, diplomacy and international affairs ample opportunity to study in depth both the man's philosophy and the times during which he lived.

Federal Writers' Project

The lives of most people are rarely considered worthy of recording for historical purposes. Only recently have sociologists, historians and other scholars recognized the qualitative value of such information for obtaining well-rounded historical perspectives on an era. Federal Writers' Project preserves on microfiche over 12,000 manuscript pages documenting the personal histories of Southerners, which were collected through this New Deal program begun during the Great Depression.

In these life histories, ordinary Southerners speak for themselves and what they have to say provides a unique view of the world they experienced and helped create. These people describe how major events affected them - the Civil War, Emancipation, World War I, the Great Depression. They speak of growing up, getting married, having children and getting old. They talk about family life, sex roles and religious beliefs. Students of American history, African-American studies, womens' studies, the family, sociology and the South will find the stories of these unknown Southern people of great value for research topics such as:

- Interrelating specific historical events to their effects at the grass-roots level
- A study of government social programs and the perceived accrued benefits to the programs' recipients
- Tracing social changes in the family and its structure, in the status of blacks during Reconstruction and in the roles of women in Southern society

This unique record of oral histories was filmed from the holdings of the Southern Historical Collection at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. Institutions supporting or beginning a popular oral history program will also benefit from this model, which documents the lives of the normally voiceless, faceless everyday American.

Massachusetts Historical Society Collections

1419 - 1970

The Massachusetts Historical Society is an independent, not-for-profit research institution incorporated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It was founded in 1791 for the threefold purpose of collecting, preserving and disseminating resources for the study of American history. It was not only the first North American historical society but also the first library of any kind to devote its primary attention to collecting Americana. These collections cannot be matched either in scope or depth by those of any similar institution in North America. Titles from the MHS Collections may be purchased by individual reel.

- Civil War Correspondence, Diaries and Journals at the Massachusetts Historical Society

The individual war experiences of 29 men who served with Massachusetts military units during the Civil War are now available to researchers. This collection contains more than 30,000 pages of correspondence, diaries and journals written by young men as they served in the conflict. A variety of individual experiences in many of the war's most important battles are recorded. Descriptions of dreary field service, life in military hospitals, the Navy, the United States Christian Commission, and a Provost Marshall's office provide unique eyewitness accounts of an important era in U.S. history. While most of the material was generated by enlisted men, there are also sections from field officers and a major general to provide a leadership perspective. The collection is organized by individual name, but for the added convenience of researchers, an index by military unit served in is also provided. Individual reels may be purchased.

- Lyman Family Papers, 1785-1956

The Lyman Family Papers consists of account books, diaries, letterbooks, newspaper clippings, writings and scrapbooks of many generations of this illustrious New England family. The largest portion of the collection contains chiefly the papers of Theodore Lyman, Jr. (1792-1849), author, philanthropist and mayor of Boston and Theodore Lyman III (1833-1897), zoologist, Civil War aide-de-camp to Union General George Gordon Meade and Massachusetts congressman. Civil War scholars and historians will find particularly rich resources through vivid descriptions of military life, sketches of historical figures including Ulysses S. Grant, Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee, as well as Civil War diaries and newspaper clippings. In addition, other Lyman family members and members of the related Shaw, Russell, Agassiz and Eliot families are represented in the collection, providing genealogical sources on prominent Bostonians during the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries. Individual reels may be purchased.

- The Adams Papers, 1639-1889

Two-and-a-half centuries of United States history are covered and brought to life through the papers of the Adams family. From President John Adams (1735-1826) and his famous wife Abigail through the lives of President John Quincy Adams (1767-1848) and U.S. Minister to England Charles Francis Adams (1807-1866), the more than 300,000 manuscript pages in the collection provide one of the most thorough accounts of history as told by one family. The contributions of the many Adams family members in the political, social and economic spheres of public life are documented. Researchers will also benefit from the innermost thoughts and feelings of family members as they correspond with each other over the decades. Included are diaries, letterbooks, autobiographical writings, legal papers, family letters, plus political essays and speeches. The collection is organized internally to afford scholars convenient access to the papers. Part I contains the diaries of John, John Quincy and Charles Francis Adams. Part II follows with the letterbooks of these three statesmen. Part III is organized by generation and thereafter by individual. Part IV contains letters received by the family and other loose papers, arranged chronologically from 1639-1889. Individual reels may be purchased.

A People at War: Civil War Manuscripts

A People at War reproduces on microfilm the personal papers of more than 350 people from both North and South – civilians, professionals, camp followers and ordinary soldiers, participants and observers, male and female, black and white. A written record of the silent majority of the Civil War, the collection incorporates a remarkable range of voices and viewpoints from a Union private describing camp life during the Shenandoah campaign or a lieutenant recounting troop reaction to the Appomattox surrender to a prisoner of war telling of suffering at Andersonville and an ex-slavewoman writing about conditions in the North.

These papers are the raw materials of history opening up to researchers such elusive issues as the attitudes and actions of non-combatants in the war, the condition and contribution of blacks, the role of women both in and behind the lines of battle, the treatment of convalescents and prisoners of war, weapons development and tactical innovations and the place of religion in the lives of ordinary soldiers. A highly significant research resource, organized to be easily accessible, A People at War revolutionizes our understanding of the event that shook the foundations of the United States.

Sumner, Charles. Papers of Charles Sumner

'...an individual voice, always so personal, often almost comic, essentially so natural, in spite of that note of the orator which is perceptible from the first.'

~ Henry James writing in 1903

The publication in a single edition of virtually the entire known correspondence of influential anti-slavery and civil rights campaigner, Charles Sumner (1811-1874) is an event of major importance for scholars concerned with the events and personalities of the Civil War and Reconstruction eras. Sumner was a major influence on both domestic and foreign policy in the Lincoln, Johnson and Grant presidencies attracting both widespread support and bitter censure. The microfilm collection brings together for the first time more than 26,000 letters written over 45 years touching on almost every aspect of American intellectual and political life.

Van Buren, Martin. Papers of Martin Van Buren

1789 - 1861

'In making hundreds of political decisions and moral choices during his career, Van Buren sought to maintain a balance between what he considered the republican principles of his youth and the demands of the democratic system he was building. When balance was impossible and something had to give way, politics took precedence over ideology.'

~ Donald B. Cole

Eighth President of the United States, Martin Van Buren, was one of a generation of politicians who led the country through a period of enormous economic, technological and social change. His Papers, brought together in a single microfilm collection, are a significant primary source for the study of American political and social history between the end of the Revolution and the Civil War. All the major domestic and foreign policy concerns of the day are debated in his extensive correspondence from slavery and the principles of Free Soil to relations with Mexico and negotiations with Great Britain over the Canadian rebellion.

American Culture Series II (ACSII)

1493 - 1875

The 5,600 titles in the Series II collection represent what are considered to be fundamental research materials in interdisciplinary American Studies curricula. The titles in American Culture Series II include all those in American Culture Series I. This larger collection also expands the pre-1806 offerings and extends the series through 1875. Selected and compiled in the mid-1950s by the Committee on Microfilm Bibliography of the American Studies Association, the series includes information on American education, religion, pacifism, feminism, the city, the history of science and many other subjects of importance to American historiography. The bibliography of pre-1876 books and pamphlets on which this collection is based was edited by David R. Weimer and is offered free with the American Culture Series II. Categorized by discipline for optimum research use, the collection is available in its entirety or in 12 separate units. The following units will be most beneficial to those interested in Civil War Studies:

- History
- Military and Naval History and Science

These units contain numerous accounts, sketches, biographies, articles and manuals presenting many perspectives on the conflict. A sampling of titles in this collection includes:

- A new system of infantry tactics, double and single rank, adapted to American topography and improved fire-arms. (1867)
- Memorial to Congress for the establishment of a national foundry and a gun-boat yard at Ironton, Ohio. (1862)
- History of the United States Cavalry, from the formation of the federal government to the 1st of June, 1863. To which is added a list of all the names of the cavalry regiments, with the names of their commanders, which have been in the United States service since the breaking out of the rebellion. (1865)
- Biographical register of the officers and graduates of the U.S. military academy at West Point, N.Y., from its establishment in 1802, to 1890; with the early history of the United States military academy.
- Ten years in the United States; being an Englishman's view of men and things in the North and South (1865)

American History and Culture

1930 - 1988

New perspectives on American history, architecture, archaeology, curation and ethnography, from the report files of the National Park Service. Since 1930 the National Park Service has sponsored or acquired thousands of archaeological, architectural, ethnographic, museum collections management and historical research reports exploring the riches of the American heritage. Few have been available even at the largest libraries and research institutions. Now reproduced on microfiche these unique reports offer social and cultural historians, anthropologists and other researchers fresh insights into America's past from Great Smoky Mountains dialect to Great Lakes lighthouse folklore, from prehistoric Native American earth mounds to Civil War battlefields and presidential furnishings. Untapped resources with a depth of detail unmatched elsewhere, the 5,554 reports include maps, photographs, architectural plans, drawings, letters, diaries and other primary documentation invaluable to cultural research. Accompanying the collection is the Cultural Resources Management Bibliography (CRBIB) , also on microfiche, giving swift access to the reports by geographic location, subject, author, title and date.

Black Biographical Dictionaries

1790 - 1950

'This is certainly a collection that will make my job - and the job of anyone who wants to track down vital biographical information - much, much easier.'

~ William French, Scholar and Rare Book Dealer

Black Biographical Dictionaries, brings together over 30,000 biographical references and thousands of portraits of black Americans, both famous and little known, reflecting the richness of black experience over the past two centuries. The largest biographical compilation ever gathered to document the lives of black Americans, the 300 titles reproduced on microfiche amount to a collective history of the men and women who have strived for and achieved personal triumph in the face of racial and gender prejudice. Written and edited in most cases by blacks, the works reproduced include biographical sketches of individuals from all walks of life - national activists, state and local figures, prominent women, lawyers, artists, musicians, church and missionary society leaders and many more. This remarkable collection offers real insight into black America from the accomplishments, against the odds, of thousands of previously unknown black women to the history of local black elites and their interactions with white America.

Black Biographical Dictionaries Supplement

1790 - 1950

Black Biographical Dictionaries Supplement provides on microfiche the full texts of 51 rare books containing biographical essays of African-American men and women from colonial times to the 20th century. Volumes for this project deal primarily with African Americans and contain at least one chapter or section devoted exclusively to biographical sketches. All volumes were published prior to 1951. After the publication of the original landmark Black Biographical Dictionaries, additional titles were located. This supplement adds more rare and valuable biographical content to any African-American library collection. The Black Biographical Dictionaries Supplement titles portray a diverse commentary of historical and cultural events that shaped American history. Researchers can read accounts from black soldiers in the military (during the War of 1812, the Civil War and World War I) or research the history of religious denominations and business leaders in the African-American community. In addition, titles by early African-American publishers like R.L. Pendelton and the Hampton Institute are represented in this supplement. Titles include:

- A History of the Amistad Captives: Being a Circumstantial Account of the Capture of the Spanish Schooner Amistad, by the Africans on Board With Biographical Sketches of Each of the Surviving Africans (1840)
- History of the Negro Soldiers in the Spanish-American War and Other Items of Interest (1899)
- The Cayugan Baptist. Sermons, Rock-Ribbed Fundamentals, Facts and Truths and Brief Biographies of Eminent Preachers (1922)
- The Eighth Illinois (1899)

Black Biography: Supplement

1790 - 1950

The 51 titles that were indexed here provided biographical information from a wide range of human endeavor. The names found here are often not mentioned in standard historical sources, but their lives and achievements are integral to any understanding of the black experience in America over the past two centuries. During a period when African Americans were denied public acknowledgement, biographical accounts were compiled and published within the community to document the ambitions and successes of its members. This index archive records the life and times of these 19th and 20th century Afro-Americans. This one volume index includes full name, birth and death dates, place of birth, occupation and religious affiliation for each individual, as well as the location of every biographical sketch and every photograph.

Morristown Manuscript Collection

Over the years, scores of scholars and researchers have visited Morristown National Historical Park in New Jersey specifically to gain access to the more than 60,000 pages of important manuscripts contained in its collection. Now, this historical resource is available to students of American history, Americana, genealogy and Revolutionary War history through this microfilm collection. Though the emphasis is on the Revolutionary War period and men such as Franklin, Jefferson, Adams, Hamilton, Madison and Washington, there is substantial material on 19th century figures like Martin Van Buren, Daniel Webster and Robert E. Lee. Also featured are many items on the French and Indian War, the War of 1812 and the Civil War period. Materials on and writings by such literary notables as Samuel Clemens, James Fenimore Cooper, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Washington Irving are also represented.

The collection is divided into two parts:

- The Lloyd W. Smith Collection - The collection had its origin in banker, philanthropist and collector Smith's deep interest in compiling and preserving Washingtonia and materials related to genealogies and local histories in his native New Jersey. Over the years, his interest became a preoccupation and he often purchased large-scale lots of manuscript materials to acquire a few desired items. Smith's will dictated that the Morristown National Historical Park should be the final recipient of his valuable holdings and a library was constructed to house the collection.
- The Park Collection - The collection consists of materials acquired by the Washington Association of New Jersey, which was formed in 1874 to save and perpetuate the Ford Mansion, George Washington's headquarters in 1779 and 1780. In addition to preserving his home as a national shrine, the Association made a concerted effort to collect Washingtonia and other equally valuable documents and artifacts from America's past.

When Morristown National Historical Park was created in 1933, the National Park Service purchased these manuscripts, which became the nucleus of the collection. From politics to fine arts, this collection has something for every researcher and it is one of the most significant collections of materials of this type in the United States.

Pamphlets in American History

Beginning with Tom Paine's Common Sense, which altered the course of early U.S. history; pamphlets have played a crucial role in American history. Pamphlet literature has been the medium through which people have expressed their opinions and feelings on contemporary affairs. This unique microfiche collection brings to your library these historic documents of public opinion, which are generally unavailable as research sources. There are more than 15,000 titles in this collection, drawn from all periods of United States history. Pamphlets in American History also provides the cataloging necessary to integrate pamphlet literature into the mainstream of collection development activities. This collection has been carefully designed to meet the needs of historians and librarians in the areas of bibliographic control and access. Each of the five groups within the collection is accompanied by its own guide and each guide includes bibliographic citations, author title and subject indexes. In addition, complete cataloging is available for each portion of the collection.

Pamphlets in American History is organized within each group in subject-specific segments. In this way, the collection can be tailored to meet a library's collecting policies or departmental teaching strengths. The historical information contained in the pamphlets is as rich and varied as the authors. Included are biographies, campaign literature, speeches, legal decisions, trade union leaflets, personal narratives and more. (Does not duplicate materials in Pamphlets on the Civil War, 1861-1865.) The American History pamphlets collection at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin has been a major resource for this undertaking. The collection also draws upon the pamphlet resources of many other general and special collections, including: the Syracuse University Libraries; The Tamiment Library of New York University; The New-York Historical Society; The Kenneth Spencer Research Library of the University of Kansas; and the Walter Clinton Jackson Library at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Pamphlets on the Civil War

1861 - 1865

In reality, there were two Civil Wars. One was the five-year-long battle of armies. The other was a generation-long battle of words that fueled the division between North and South. Pamphlets – an inexpensive medium for expressing opinion – became the battleground in that war of words. Now students and scholars can access this vital pamphlet literature to enrich their study of American history in the areas of politics, military affairs, religion, diplomacy and economics. Pamphlets on the Civil War contains 1,758 important and representative titles that allow an insider's view of the thoughts, feelings and beliefs that eventually erupted into armed conflict. Here – in their own words – are the contemporary opinions of government officials, military leaders, businessmen, clergymen, journalists and others engaged in the Civil War's battle of ideals and ambitions. These primary source titles date from 1850s through the early 20th century. They provide a complete picture of the issues and attitudes that led to war – and that war's impact on American history. The collection is arranged in 28 subject categories, such as:

- Anti-South Literature and Fiction
- Lincoln and the Presidency
- Economics and War
- Soldiers' Life
- Conscription
- Foreign Opinion
- Peace Movements

Within these and the other 21 categories, researchers will find biographies, campaign literature, government documents, journals, maps, presidential addresses, sermons, speeches and a multitude of other written opinions disseminated through the pamphlet literature during this period. These materials will supplement holdings in virtually every area of American history: politics, military history, social sciences, religion, economics and state and local history. The program was assembled from the Civil War pamphlets collection at The State Historical Society of Wisconsin, a major repository of manuscript and printed materials on American history.

Newspaper & Periodical Collections

The African American Press Collection

1830-present

The title list for this collection was developed by an advisory board composed of key scholars. The collection includes 25 titles, the oldest of which are Radical Abolitionist (1855 – 1858) and Principia (1859 – 1864). This eclectic collection offers a rich store of information on African-American life encompassing issues such as history, social commentary, political advocacy, religion, education, literature and the arts among others. Black periodicals reflect the myriad of voices and perspectives of a people whose social history in America has been marked by the experiences of slavery, disfranchisement and achievement.

Although many people are aware of the significance and popularity of Ebony magazine and may know of its founder, John H. Johnson, few know that Johnson's first successful publishing venture was Negro Digest. In 1942 Johnson got the idea that the assorted tidbits of information on Black people could be marketed and sold in the manner of the popular mainstream magazine, Reader's Digest. Thus, Negro Digest was born with the assistance of a $500 loan secured by his mother's furniture as collateral. In 1970 the title was changed to Black World. Johnson's second magazine, the aforementioned Ebony, debuted with the same size, look and feel of Life except African-American personalities, lifestyles and perspectives were the featured components. Ebony, began in 1945, just three years after he launched Negro Digest. This collection also contains a major Ebony competitor, Sepia, that ran from 1952 to 1982.

A wealth of material specifically related to African-American history can be found in the Negro History Bulletin, founded in 1937 and published by the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History. In the areas of African-American literature, social commentary and political advocacy, this collection offers several important periodicals spanning much of the 20th century. Included among these are Crisis, Opportunity, and Freedomways. Crisis is the official magazine of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and was founded in 1910. Its founding editor was W.E.B. Du Bois. Perhaps with the exception of the NAACP, the National Urban League has been the most influential national organization championing the causes of Black America. Opportunity was the Urban League's official publication and was contemporaneous with the NAACP's Crisis from its founding in 1923 until its demise in 1949. Opportunity became a forum for the writings of Harlem Renaissance figures such as Countee Cullen, Claude McKay, Angelena Weld Grimke and Gwendolyn Bennett. James Weldon Johnson and Langston Hughes, both contributors to Crisis, also saw their work published in Opportunity. Freedomways was a quarterly literary and social commentary magazine focusing on civil rights issues and pan-Africanism. It began in 1961 and continued until 1985.

Those who consult this collection primarily for sources in African-American literature and the arts will also find Phylon Quarterly, founded by W.E.B. DuBois and continued by Atlanta University, of interest. Other titles include Black American Literature Forum; Black Theater; and The Black Perspective in Music. The scholarly professional publications represented in the collection include some of the most important journals: Journal of Negro Education, Journal of Negro History and the Journal of the National Medical Association.

This collection is only available for purchase as a complete set.

- Series II: Growth & Change, 1800-1850

The issue of slavery was debated widely and emotionally for decades before it divided the nation during the Civil War. The periodicals from the pre-war era included in American Periodicals Series II provide social historians with a wealth of literature on this volatile issue. Students will discover such materials as: The Genius of Universal Emancipation (1821-39), the first of the many abolitionist journals in this collection; William Lloyd Garrison's Liberator (1831-65), which became the most celebrated abolitionist periodical; and counterpoint publications such as Southern Quarterly Review (1842-57), which upheld the institution of slavery. The 911 titles in Series II demonstrate the rapid growth of periodicals after 1800 and include virtually all the significant magazines of the period. Hard-to-locate research materials, such as Poe's contributions to Southern Literary Messenger (1831-64) and Hawthorne's New England Magazine (1831-35), are available to literary researchers through this collection. - Series III: Crisis & Reconstruction, 1850-1900

Series III includes 118 periodicals from the Civil War and Reconstruction era published during the last half of the 19th century. This select grouping focuses on many of the early important professional journals, such as Publications of the American Economic Association and Proceedings of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. This series also includes many celebrated titles issued by publishing houses—Scribners, Harper's Bazaar, Lippincott's, Vanity Fair, Cosmopolitan and Ladies' Home Journal. Students of marketing and advertising will find these popular periodicals useful in exploring the first examples of modern advertising slogans. Titles of particular interest to Civil War researchers include:

- The Old Guard, 1862-1870: The projector and first editor of Old Guard, Reverend C.C. Burr, staunchly supported the Southern view on slavery. His journal, published in New York, was in short a "Copperhead." The articles were constantly anti-Lincoln, anti-Republican, bitter and very violent. Little, if any, sympathy for the Southern cause was gained through its efforts.
- Century, 1870-1930: Dr. Josiah Gilbert Holland, the founding editor, contributed serial fiction and essays on morals, manners, politics, religion, and current events to the early issues. Henry James, Brett Harte, George W. Cable, Edward Eggleston, Edward Everett Hale, Joel Chandler Harris, Hans Christian Andersen, and Helen Hunt were among other famous contributors. The Engravings, woodcuts, and other illustrations were abundant and of the highest quality. A long series on the South, one on the Civil War, and another on Lincoln were very popular and profitable for the magazine. Series and articles of historic and current interest rounded out the content of one of the most important magazines of the period.
- Southern Historical Society, 1876-1959: This, like several other journals of the time, was devoted to the description of the "causes, progress and results" of the Civil War from the Southern point of view.
- Vanity Fair, 1859-1863: With financial backing from Frank J. Thompson and an editorial staff provided by the Stephenses, the comic paper Vanity Fair came into being on December 31, 1859. Illustration was a main feature in this satirical weekly with woodcuts by Henry Louis Stephens, Frank Bellew, Ned Miller, and others. Frequent objects of caricature were political figures such as Buchanan, Douglas, and Greeley. Vanity Fair never attained widespread popularity. Its attacks on abolitionists and the Negro during the war brought it many enemies. Mounting prices of materials and a reduced subscription rate also contributed to the paper's demise.

The Tuskegee Institute News Clipping File

1899 - 1966

Black disenfranchisement . . . the Scottsboro case . . . Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. . . . the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The issues, events and people that make up the modern black experience in America and throughout the world are numerous and the history of this race is fraught with struggle and achievement. Students in African-American studies, American history and sociology can access a comprehensive file for researching 20th century black experience in the United States, Africa and throughout the world. The Tuskegee Institute News Clipping File contains hundreds of thousands of individual news clippings compiled from more than 300 major national dailies, leading Southeastern dailies, black newspapers, magazines, religious and special interest publications and foreign newspapers. Researchers will find primary source coverage on issues of concern to African Americans from 1899 to 1966. The history of black struggles and successes can be traced over the years through these materials and a special insight can be attained by viewing history through the eyes of the legitimate press. The file is augmented with significant correspondence, reports and speeches and covers a wide range of historical and contemporary topics including:

- Africa
- Civil rights
- Employment
- Music, poetry and art
- Segregation
- Anti-Negro groups
- Education
- Ku Klux Klan
- Race relations
- Racial consciousness

This remarkable resource was begun by eminent black sociologist Dr. Monroe Nathan Work of the Tuskegee Institute. As head of the Institute's Department of Records and Research, it was his responsibility to gather, organize and disseminate information about blacks. Dr. Work compiled information from newspapers and periodicals, press clipping bureaus, books, government statistics and reports, questionnaires, correspondence and other sources. Fortunately, his successors continued with the systematic collection of these materials. Filmed from the holdings of the Tuskegee Institute Archives, this collection represents a complete and descriptive record of the social, political, cultural and economic transitions throughout modern African-American history.

Anti-Slavery Materials: Regional Records and Other Pamphlets *

1700 - 1899

The collection of Anti-Slavery material at the John Rylands Library is a wide-ranging and fascinating one which is of particular importance for the study of provincial philanthropic societies in England. As well as this, there are documents from Africa and many from the West Indies in addition to substantial papers concerning the American Civil War. The major part of this initial publication consists of the Wilson Anti-Slavery Collection, a large series of 19th century pamphlets donated by H.G. Wilson, the Member of Parliament for Sheffield. Much of the material is extremely rare, with a substantial emphasis on publications issued in the region – especially Birmingham, Glasgow, Leeds, Manchester and Sheffield. The American Civil War material includes items from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and The Rochester Ladies Anti-Slavery Association. A substantial West Indian series emanates from Jamaica, together with many items from throughout the Caribbean. There is also an interesting series from India.

Black Abolitionist Papers

1830 - 1865

Long neglected in studies of the anti-slavery movement that precipitated the Civil War, the important writings, speeches and correspondence of black abolitionists are drawn together in a comprehensive collection for researchers. Now libraries can supplement their African-American studies holdings with primary sources necessary for a complete study of this major historical topic. The collection encompasses approximately 15,000 articles and documents of nearly 300 black abolitionists in the United States, Canada, England, Scotland, Ireland, France and Germany and includes:

- The correspondence of key African-American leaders
- Speeches, sermons and lectures
- Articles, essays, editorials and other major writings from more than 200 African-American abolitionist and reform newspapers
- Receipts, poems and other miscellaneous documents

The Black Abolitionist Papers project was conceived, compiled and edited by George E. Carter, University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse and C. Peter Ripley, Florida State University, who recognized that these reformers were a persuasive force in the 19th century anti-slavery movement who had been virtually ignored. Among research topics to be explored in this collection are:

- Northern/Southern separatism within the church
- Black colonization and emigration
- Black political action
- Church support of black educational institutions
- Black intellectual and social life

This collection constitutes the largest single collection of materials touching antebellum African Americans. A black studies program would not be complete without access to these documents outlining the integral role played by African Americans in the anti-slavery crusade.

The Pennsylvania Abolition Society Papers

1775 - 1975

Even as the U.S. was in the midst of declaring its independence in 1775, a society was born in Philadelphia dedicated to emancipating America's black slaves. The Pennsylvania Abolition Society originated with the early anti-slavery activities of Philadelphia Quakers and its continuing efforts toward the cause of equal education and employment for blacks makes it the oldest such organization still in existence. The microfilm collection of the Society's papers charts the founding and the activities of this organization and contains primary sources central to a study of the American abolition movement both pre- and post-Civil War.

Students conducting research in black studies, American history, abolition movements, religious history and the history of American education will find correspondence, minutes, reports, financial papers, manumissions, indentures and other legal papers, as well as printed materials in these documents. Among the many topics to be examined in-depth are:

- The Society's Early Years: Philadelphia Quakers' anti-slavery activities and their withdrawal from the Society; the Society's reestablishment with such influential members as Tench Coxe, Benjamin Franklin, John Jay and Thomas Paine
- The Society's Shifting Directions: early activities centering around manumission and anti-slavery petitions during the Civil War; later emphasis on education and employment of emancipated blacks; founding of a school for free blacks in Philadelphia; and support to black educational institutions such as Howard University
- The Society in the 20th Century: its involvement in the civil rights movement; advancement of a black cultural and historical museum in Philadelphia; its advocacy of black history studies in Philadelphia's public schools

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania filmed this collection from the original documents in its possession. It represents a landmark collection for time-specific research as well as for comparative period studies relating to the abolition movement in America.

Slavery and Anti-Slavery Pamphlets from the Libraries of Salmon P. Chase and John P. Hale

1840 - 1859

During the decades before and just after the Civil War, a historical collection of abolitionist documents was being compiled in the offices of two government officials. Salmon P. Chase (1808-73), member of the Lincoln Cabinet and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and John P. Hale (1806-73), a distinguished lawyer and Senator from New Hampshire, were both active in the anti-slavery movement. Between them was accumulated a rich legacy of abolitionist materials now accessible to today's researchers. The 166 pamphlets, speeches, reports, legal opinions and convention proceedings, most printed in the 1840s and 1850s, examine the historical, legal, social and religious aspects of the slavery issue. Students in American history, black studies, the Civil War, and political science can examine such questions as:

- The Fugitive Slave Law of 1850
- The annexation of Texas
- The condition of freed slaves
- The forced emigration of blacks
- The constitutional rights of blacks

The writings of Theodore Parker, Sojourner Truth, Emma Willard, Daniel Webster, Alexis de Tocqueville and Horace Mann address the problem of slavery in America, while other tracts in the collection in French, Spanish and German provide insight into the slavery issue in the Caribbean during this same period. Several holdings in the collection illuminate the situation of freedmen just after the Civil War. These include the charter and bylaws of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company of Washington, D.C., the minutes of the 1866 Freedmen's Convention, a 1867 issue of The Freedman's Record and several issues of The American Freedman (1866-67). The opposing viewpoint is represented in this material as well, with such pro-slavery views as John H. Van Evrie's Negroes and Negro "Slavery": The First, an Inferior Race - the Latter, its Normal Condition (1854). Historians particularly interested in the activities of the numerous societies and conventions to aid African Americans will discover useful information, such as:

- Convention proceedings and annual reports from the African Methodist Episcopal Church
- Convention materials from the 1853 Colored National Convention
- Documents of the American and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society
- Material from the Society of Friends, a group that supported the abolitionist movement

In addition, these pamphlets will help researchers study the Civil War and its causes and analyze the legal, religious and moral ramifications of American slavery on the U.S. then and now. The authoritative sources from the libraries of these two prominent government officials make this collection truly unique among abolitionist literature collections.

Slavery: Catalyst for Conflict

This remarkable microfiche collection brings together essential literature on the institution of slavery as it became the emotional fuel for sweeping social, political and economic change in the U.S. The more than 5,900 documents in the collection are organized into 11 topical areas covering a broad range of contemporary responses to the slavery dilemma. Researchers can study eyewitness accounts, recorded as the nation's most divisive conflict evolved from a question of economics and ethics to a major cause of a civil war. While the primary sources in the collection include material for researching American slavery, there are also numerous titles on Latin-American and Caribbean slavery, as well as information on the British and French slave trades from the 16th through 19th centuries. The Slavery microfiche collection includes the following types of primary source information:

- Biographies and autobiographies
- Campaign literature
- Correspondence
- Legal decisions and briefs
- Sermons
- Broadside
- Debates
- Eyewitness accounts
- Newspapers and periodicals
- Speeches

A majority of the titles were drawn from the superb holdings of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, the New York Historical Society Library, the New York Public Library and the Long Island Historical Society. With the diversity of materials offered and the organization of the collection into 11 topical areas, students and researchers will be able to focus their research on issues such as:

- Legal questions created by slavery, including the controversy surrounding the Supreme Court's Dred Scott decision
- The views of many religious groups and churches on the morality of slavery, including important material on the Quaker abolitionist movement
- The impact of slavery on the American economy, including both pro- and anti-slavery views on "black gold," the slave dealers' term for their African cargo

The opportunities for research into the subjects of slavery, African-American history, or American studies are virtually boundless with this collection of incisive, primary source records.

State Secession Debates

1859 - 1862

One central issue which faced the fifteen southern and border states during the mid-19th century was the question of slavery. Eleven states could not accept the programs of President Lincoln and seceded from the Union. Four states— Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri—decided in either legislative session or convention not to secede from the Union. The complete records of debate for all states in which secession was an active issue are included in this 35mm microfilm program.

The Archives of Old Christ Church

1695 - 1976

The history of a social or cultural institution often provides researchers with a unique perspective on the development of a nation. Such is the case with the Archives of Old Christ Church, Philadelphia. This microfilm collection documents the history of Philadelphia's Old Christ Church, a cornerstone for the Protestant Episcopal Church in America. Researchers will be interested in the parallels between the growth of the church and its impact on the city of Philadelphia and the United States. Founded in 1695, Old Christ Church defined the plan for Episcopal Church Government after the American Revolution. It was also one of the first parishes to embrace the Sunday School movement – a phenomenon described in this catalog. (See The American Sunday School Union Papers, 1817-1915.) Among topics of research suggested by the minutes, registers, reports and personal papers in this collection are:

- The Anglican minority in William Penn's Quaker capital
- The Church of England's appointment of clergy to guide and instruct the congregation
- The lay power of the vestry vs. the aims of the early rectors
- The impact of Old Christ Church on Philadelphia, the American Revolution and the nation as a whole
- The influence exerted by prominent parishioners such as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Betsy Ross and Francis Hopkinson
- The Civil War and its toll on the Old Christ Church congregation
- The 1950 designation of Old Christ Church as a national shrine

This collection is also a valuable record for genealogists and local historians researching Pennsylvania and its history and was originally sponsored by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission.

Van Dyke, Henry Jackson. Lectures and Sermons of Henry Jackson Van Dyke

1822 - 1891

The life of Henry Jackson Van Dyke, Sr. "tells more than the story of one individual," according to James H. Moorhead in the Journal of Presbyterian History: He was noted in the first part of his ministry as a conservative advocate of denominational particulars, a fierce opponent of abolitionism and a loyal friend of the South. Late in his career, Van Dyke worked for a broad church where theological tolerance would reign. A graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, Van Dyke began his clerical career as pastor of the New School Second Church in Bridgeton, New Jersey, formed by dissidents from the Old School First Church. In time he decided he was an Old School pastor after all and moved on to an Old School ministry at the First Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, New York, where he served the balance of his long career. Van Dyke's conservative views put him in opposition to the "Second Great Awakening" of religious revivalism sweeping the U.S. at the time. These spiritual and political awakenings, which ultimately led to the abolitionist and suffragist movements, attempted to wring social change from scripture. In contrast, Van Dyke believed with all his heart - and for most of his life - that social change was not the mission of the church.

The Lectures and Sermons collection reflects the extent to which Van Dyke's beliefs changed (in some cases greatly, in others not at all) during the course of his ministry. Perhaps his most famous sermon, delivered in 1860, excoriated abolitionism as "the chief cause of...the danger that threatens our country." Muted for most of the Civil War, he nonetheless published a pamphlet in 1864 taking vigorous exception to the Emancipation Proclamation. Following the war, the American Presbyterian Church began a process of reconciliation - Old and New School, North and South. As a conservative with ties to Southern churches, Van Dyke played an important role in mediating the Presbyterian General Assembly dispute of the 1870s. By the end of his life, he was able to declare, "If we cannot have liberty and orthodoxy, let us have liberty and go without orthodoxy." In Moorhead's words, he had become the "conservative apostle of a broad church." All the sermons and lectures in the ProQuest collection have been microfilmed from Van Dyke's handwritten originals, including both outlines and complete texts. Together they help historical researchers trace the evolution of American Protestant thought during a century marked by disputes over the very concept of polity, both doctrinal and political.

A guide included at the beginning of the first reel provides access by Biblical citation and sermon title; A paper copy of the guide is distributed with the collection

Genealogy

New Hampshire, Hanover. Dr. Gilman Frost's Genealogical Records of Hanover, New Hampshire

1750 - 1900

Over 7,500 index cards in this collection record the genealogical history of the inhabitants of Hanover, New Hampshire. Dr. Gilman Dubois Frost (1864-1942), physician and genealogist, meticulously compiled these records that include statistics dating back to the town's founding in the mid-18th century. These archival records constitute a tremendous resource for the study of the history of Hanover, its surrounding region, and New England.

Includes introductory essays by Mildred L. Saunders and Professor John Hurd

Genealogy and Local History

This collection assembles and preserves genealogies, local histories, primary source materials and genealogical and local history serials. When complete, Genealogy and Local History will encompass materials related to all 50 states and Canada as well as Great Britain, Ireland and many other countries of immigration to North America, making it an unprecedented resource and a major preservation project. ProQuest releases three units per year, adding approximately 1,500 titles to the collection annually. Each unit follows a carefully structured format and is accompanied by a printed guide providing access by fiche number, title, family name, geographic area and subject. For the benefit of individuals, titles from the first 40 units are available for single-title sale. ProQuest continues to broaden the depth of Genealogy and Local History by adding resources. Notable additions include the Newberry Library (Chicago), the Sutro branch of the California State Library, the New York Public Library and University of Illinois at Urbana. For Civil War researchers, this expansive collection features state and county specific searching capabilities on over 1,500 civil war titles.

A free printed guide accompanies each unit. The guide includes a bibliographic listing of all titles, as well as author, title, subject, name and geographic indexes

Military – Civil War – Confederate

- Records Relating to Confederate Naval and Marine Personnel
This microfilm publication reproduces records relating to individuals serving in the Confederate Navy and Marine Corps. These records are in three sets:
 - Compiled hospital and prison records of naval and marine personnel
 - Reference cards and papers relating to naval personnel
 - Reference cards and papers relating to marine personnel
- Reference Files Relating to Confederate Medical Officers
- Register of Confederate Soldiers, Sailors, and Citizens who Died in Federal Prisons and Military Hospitals in the North
This microfilm publication reproduces a 665-page register which was compiled in 1912 in the Office of the Commissioner for Marking the Graves of Confederate Dead.
- Confederate States Army Casualties: Lists and Narrative Reports
This microfilm publication reproduces part of the unbound lists and narrative reports of casualties submitted to the Confederate War Department by units of the Confederate States Army
- Selected Records of the War Department Relating to Confederate Prisoners of War
This microfilm publication reproduces 427 bound volumes of records relating to Confederate prisoners of war confined by Federal authorities, 1861-65, with two of the volumes extending to 1866.
- Case Files of Applications from Former Confederates for Presidential Pardons ("Amnesty Papers") 1865-1967
- Consolidated Index to Compiled Service Records of Confederate Soldiers
This microfilm publication reproduces an alphabetical card index to the compiled service records of Confederate soldiers. This consolidated, or master, index contains all the names of Confederate soldiers found in the records used in compiling the service records, regardless of whether the service was with a unit furnished by a particular state, with a unit raised directly by the Confederate government, or as a staff officer.
- Index to Compiled Service Records of Confederate Soldiers who Served in Organizations Raised Directly by the Confederate Government and of Confederate General and Staff Officers and Non-Regimental Enlisted Men
This microfilm publication reproduces an alphabetical card index to the compiled service records of Confederate soldiers who served either
 - In military organizations raised directly or otherwise formed by the Confederate government
 - In some capacity that did not involve belonging to a unit at or below the regimental level
- Compiled Service Records of Confederate Soldiers who Served in Organizations Raised Directly by the Confederate Government
This microfilm publication reproduces the compiled service records of Confederate soldiers who served in military organizations raised directly or otherwise formed by the Confederate government and therefore not identified with any one state.

- Compiled Service Records of Confederate General and Staff Officers, and Non-Regimental Enlisted Men
 This microfilm publication reproduces the compiled service records of Confederate officers and enlisted men who did not belong to any particular regiment, separate company or comparable unit, or special corps. This class of military personnel included the following general officers:
 - officers and enlisted men of the so-called staff departments
 - members of army corps, division and brigade staffs
 - various appointees with special status such as aide-de-camp, military judges, chaplains, agents and drill masters

UMI Dissertation Publishing

Soon after its founding in 1938, UMI became the publisher of record for U.S. doctoral dissertations. To this day, ProQuest fills that role for graduate students whose dissertations and masters theses have been accepted by accredited institutions throughout North America.

How UMI's Dissertation Program Works

Dissertations and theses available from ProQuest /UMI are used by researchers in all fields of study. The ProQuest /UMI dissertation product line - which consists of bibliographic data, indexing, access tools and the published documents themselves - is recognized worldwide because of its comprehensive coverage, high-quality information and rigorous editorial control.

The online ProQuest Dissertation & Theses Database (PQDT) catalogs over 2 million doctoral dissertations and master's theses, dating from the first U.S. dissertation in 1861. Thousands more are added yearly. Over one million dissertations and theses are available in full page image in microform and paper, both bound and unbound. Many are also available in digital format, for downloading over the Web. Dissertations can be located and ordered on a standing order basis or via:

- ProQuest Dissertations & Theses, which provides searching capabilities and online access to citations and abstracts for every title in the database. Titles published since 1997 are available in .PDF digital format and have citation and abstract, plus 24 page previews available. Dissertations can be purchased in print, microfiche or .pdf format.
- ProQuest Dissertation Express for both individuals and libraries. If you have a specific title in mind, Dissertation Express will let you look it up by title, author or publication number. Once you find it, you can place your order immediately via our online ordering system. Use this service when you know exactly which dissertation you need to order. Dissertations can be purchased in print, microfiche or .pdf format.
- DATRIX Direct - custom computerized search service (please see the DATRIX form enclosed in this document). This is an individualized search we perform for you based on your specific research topic.
- UMI Digital Archiving and Access Program - Ask your UMI representative about this new access and preservation service for institutions.

DATRIX DIRECT

Direct to you Successful research depends on your sources. That's why if you're preparing to start a research project, it makes sense to first find out what's been written in your area of interest. You'll not only avoid duplicating someone else's work, you'll benefit from their research. | You could search the titles of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses yourself—if you have the time and patience. Or you can have DATRIX Direct conduct a dissertation search for you that's exhaustive, not exhausting.

Discover sources unique to your topic

DATRIX Direct is an individualized search that gives a one-of-a-kind listing of only those dissertation citations directly relevant to your specific research topic. The result is a computer printout of exactly the bibliographic citations you need. No more and no less. It could be as many as five hundred or as few as none (informing you that your research topic is totally unexplored).

Because it's a computerized search, DATRIX Direct is comprehensive—through UMI's vast computer database of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses dating back to 1861. And with thousands of citations being added to the database every month, DATRIX Direct is more up-to-date than any printed source. ■ Each citation includes a title, author, degree, date, institution, subject category, and order number, as well as where the abstract can be found in UMI's monthly publication Dissertation Abstracts International or the bi monthly Masters Abstracts International.

How to order your search To organize your search, complete both sides of the DATRIX Direct Search Request form and send it to UMI at the address shown. ■

The results of your DATRIX Direct search will be sent first-class mail and should arrive within two weeks of receipt of your order. For faster service, call us toll free at 800-521-3042; outside the U.S. and Canada, call 734-761-4700, ext. 7044.

SUBJECT CATEGORIES Dissertation Abstracts International is arranged by subject categories. These categories have been selected by the authors to identify their dissertations.

MATRIX DIRECT SEARCH REQUEST

The success of your search depends on how accurately and specifically you describe your research needs. The information you provide below will help us create a search strategy. Please type or clearly print in ink.

RESEARCH TOPIC Write the proposed title of your study or a summary of your research topic _____

DATABASE MATERIAL TO BE SEARCHED (Please check one.) Dissertations & master's theses Dissertations only Master's theses only

KEYWORDS UMI's dissertation database is accessed by a search for keywords in the dissertation title. The number of relevant citations retrieved depends largely on your keyword strategy. For best results, follow the procedure below:

1 Write 1 to 3 keywords from your research topic that might appear together in the dissertation titles in our database (e.g., "Nursing Burnout"). A keyword can also be numeric ("1980") or alphanumeric ("B12"). Only dissertation titles containing all the words you list on a single line can be retrieved.

2 To avoid having to list all possible word endings for a keyword, simply write the root word and an asterisk. One or more complete words must follow the root word on the same line (e.g., "Nurs*, Burnout*" would search for words such as "nurse, nurses, and nursing" which appear in the same titles as "burnout").

3 Use the other lines for synonyms and alternate words and spellings (e.g., "RN; LPN; BSN").

4 Modify words likely to appear in hundreds of titles with more specific words.

5 If appropriate, use the right-hand column to list keywords that exclude data you don't want. (e.g., "Nurs*, Home*" and "Nurs*, Homes*" would exclude titles relating to nursing homes or home nursing. Note that the computer recognizes no word order.)

SUBJECT CATEGORIES (optional) Each citation title is listed in UMI's dissertation database in a subject category chosen by the author. On the opposite page is a complete listing of subject categories and codes. List the categories (and codes) most relevant to your research topic.

DEGREE DATES (optional) You may narrow the database search to certain years or time periods (e.g., "1980 through 1983"). This is especially recommended for broad categories such as "Education, Administrative", for which nearly 1,200 titles are added each year.

INSTITUTIONS AWARDED DEGREES (optional) You may restrict the search to dissertations and master's theses prepared for specific institutions (e.g., "New York University and UCLA").
