About This Catalog

The Government Documents Catalog of ProQuest microform contains approximately 150 research collections and over 475 serials. Inside you will find government documents from all over the world, including Asia, Great Britain, the Pacific, Canada, Germany, Latin America, France and America. This catalog also contains information on obtaining Dissertations on Government Documents.

This catalog would be of particular interest to researchers in the fields of Political Science, International Studies, Law, Humanities, Foreign Studies, American History, World History, Social Studies, Anthropology and Gender Studies.

One pivotal collection from the catalog is, The National Security Archive. This collection contains previously classified documents on major foreign policy issues from the State Department and other federal agencies. For libraries looking to enhance their serials on microform, The Official Journal of the European Union, available in the following versions: French, German, Italian, Dutch, English, Danish, Spanish, Portuguese, Greek, Swedish & Finnish; would make an excellent addition to any library. From Legislative decisions to committee resolutions, The Official Journal of the European Union allows users to study the history and expansion of the European Union, as well as access the full record of the Union's dialogue with other world bodies.

This preface provides a glimpse into the contents of the Government Documents Catalog of ProQuest microform. Feel free to browse through our titles, or if you are looking for a particular research collection, please consult the index in the back. If you have any questions regarding any of our titles, please contact your ProQuest representative at umisalesinfo@proquest.com, 800.521.0600 ext. 4077 or 734.761.4700 ext. 4077.

If you would like additional copies of this or any of our ProQuest Microform Catalogs, you may either make photocopies of the catalogs or contact your ProQuest representative to have printed copies mailed directly to you.

The Advantages of Microform

Despite the continually developing array of digital technologies—and sometimes because of it—information professionals at libraries and universities worldwide still rely on microform. They know it is an archival medium that will meet the needs of researchers for years to come. Microform provides many advantages including:

- New Viewer/Scanners - Images can now be easily sent to remote locations using microform viewer/scanners, which link to your computer workstations, letting you view and print articles or digitize and transmit them electronically (within Fair Use guidelines). This approach combines the unparalleled preservation and storage benefits of microform with the speed and ease of electronic access.
- Special Collections - Microform is the answer if you need hard-to-find or specialty resources. Many older newspapers and periodicals are available only in microform, and it gives your users access to complete page images from historical titles—often from the first issue forward.
- Space Savings - Microform lets you store an extensive collection of complete article images in a small amount of space. Microform takes up less than one-tenth the area of bound copies of newspapers and periodicals.
- Ownership - There is no upkeep or access fees. It uses stable, proven technology you already have, with no need for new workstations or continual software upgrades.
- Clarity and Accuracy - Microform is the answer if you need cover-to-cover clarity and accuracy. Full-image articles are essential to getting the full story.
- Complete Collection - Microform usually is the best solution if you need a complete collection fast. Maybe you're seeking accreditation or even rebuilding after a disaster. An extensive, customized collection of retrospective and current microform titles will meet the needs of your researchers quickly and efficiently.
- Support for Specialized Studies - A compact collection in microform will meet specialized research needs and still leave plenty of resources for the rest of your population. Many libraries also use microform as an added point of access for content that is most in demand.
- Durability - archived properly, it can last for generations, and there is no degradation of images.
- ProQuest Quality - ProQuest's microform images are taken directly from the original printed pages, so you always get the clarity of first-generation copies.

ProQuest Microform is the answer because we've been producing it since 1938. We not only exceed industry standards, we set them. Our microform products include thousands of newspapers and periodicals, and hundreds of research collections, many of which are not available from any other source.

African

African Official Statistical Serials

1867 - 1982

Official statistical series are the most important source of statistical information for any country, providing scholars with indispensable primary material for economic and political research. The African Official Statistical Serials microfiche collection consists of general statistical compendia - economic, financial, social and demographic statistics - issued by the governments of nearly every African country, reflecting the political and economic development of the region. Few libraries have complete sets of these volumes in the original.

African Sectional Committee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and Industry: Minutes*

1892 - 1926

These minutes provide an absorbing and detailed account of the trade and commerce of a colonial power at its height. The present microfilm edition will undoubtedly be of value to Africanists, economists, social and political historians alike for the light it throws on the background to the legislation and political decisions embodied in the official publications of the British and Colonial Governments of the period.

Government Publications Relating to Basutoland*

1868 - 1966

This collection includes a comprehensive series of Government documents on Basutoland, the colonial name for Lesotho. It comprises the Annual Reports, Gazettes, Proclamations and Notices, Laws of Basutoland, Law Reports, reports on Customary law (including the Laws of Lerotholi), the Proceedings of the National Council/Legislative Council, Census reports, financial reports and numerous miscellaneous reports. This is a unique collection gathered from a wide variety of different sources covering the entire colonial period from 1868, when the territory became a British Protectorate, until the formation of the independent state of Lesotho in 1966. The collection includes documents for the period of direct administrative rule by the Cape Colony (1871-1884). Also included are documents from the pre-colonial period from the consolidated Basutoland Records compiled by the Secretary of Native Affairs of the Cape Colony in 1883.

Government Publications Relating to The Cape of Good Hope to 1910*

1821 - 1910

Included in this collection are virtually all known annexures to the Votes and Proceedings (i.e. all the papers that were laid before Parliament for the inspection of the members) during the periods of representative and responsible government at the Cape of Good Hope. The annexures consist of a wide variety of documents, the most common being reports of select committees, bills and petitions and reports of government departments. This latter group of documents in effect provides a full run of annual departmental reports of the kind published in the series Annual Departmental Reports relating to African Countries prior to Independence (see details above) and their existence in Group I of this publication obviates the need for including them in the separate Annual Departmental Reports series.

American Papers in the House of Lords Record Office*

1621 - 1917

For the history of the American colonies and the USA, the documents in the House of Lords Record Office, London, are an indispensable resource. Since the Jamestown settlement, material relating to North America has accumulated in the House of Lords Record Office, which serves as the record office for Parliament. The "Main Papers", i.e. the papers laid on the Table of the House of Lords have been thoroughly combed for American material for the first time and the resulting collection of material illustrates many aspects of the development of North America including:

- immigration
- settlement
- trade (notably the slave trade)
- religion
- fisheries
- the railways
- labor
- patents
- as well as politics and international relations

The microfilm contains, where appropriate, material relating to Canada and the West Indies as well as the 13 colonies which became the United States of America. The microfilm is accompanied by a comprehensive printed Guide consisting of a Calendar of the American Papers in the House of Lords Record Office and an Index to the microfilmed items in the Calendar. Because of its comprehensiveness, this volume clearly supersedes Andrews & Davenport, Paullin & Paxson, Crick & Alman and the other partial listings of American material in the House of Lords Record Office.

American State Papers: Documents, Legislative and Executive

1789 - 1838

Now students of political science and legislative history can take a firsthand look at the early course of American history through official records from the legislative and executive branches of government from the First through the Twenty-fifth Congress. Official floor debates, memos and committee proceedings reflect not only the growth of government, but also the personalities of our early legislative leaders and presidents. Students can trace issues both national and international in scope as recorded in history from the unique perspective of the U.S. lawmakers. The collection is divided and organized into 10 series:

- Foreign Relations, 6 vols., 1789-1828
- Indian Affairs, 2 vols., 1789-1827
- Finance, 5 vols., 1789-1828
- Commerce and Navigation, 2 vols., 1789-1823
- Military Affairs, 7 vols., 1789-1838
- Naval Affairs, 4 vols., 1794-1836
- Post Office Department, 1 vol., 1790-1833
- Public Lands, 8 vols., 1789-1837
- Claims, 1 vol., 1790-1823
- Miscellaneous, 2 vols., 1789-1823

American State Papers reproduces on microfilm unique documents selected and edited under Congressional auspices in the 19th century. With this collection, researchers and students can trace such topics as the development of legislation in relation to historical events and the impact of party politics on the formation of public policy.

The Armenian Genocide in the U.S. Archives

1915 - 1918

The most comprehensive documentation in the world on The Armenian Genocide. In 1915 the Ottoman government began implementing a policy to annihilate the Armenians of the empire through deportations and massacres. At that time the U.S. Embassy in Constantinople was the primary focus of attention for those reporting on the escalating violence. Over 30,000 pages of documents from the Department of State and other government agencies, reproduced on microfiche, relate in chilling detail the implementation of this policy of genocide. Documents include eyewitness accounts of deportations and massacres reported by consular officials, missionaries and relief workers, as well as State Department reports and cables providing details on the background of Near Eastern ethnic tensions, on the rise of the Djemal-Enver-Talaat ('Young Turks') regime, on the international response to the Armenian crisis, and on the aftermath of the war. A substantial index allows quick and easy access to the names and testimonies of hundreds of participants and witnesses.

The California Code of Regulations

This incredible microfiche program is designed to replace the 60 loose-leaf volumes published by Barclay's Law Publishers with approximately 300 space-saving microfiche. The microfiche edition contains the same information – all the regulations emanating from the over 200 state agencies comprising the California regulatory system. Now lawyers, law librarians, students, researchers and legal professionals can have at their fingertips the administrative codes that form California law – the state that is most watched for new interpretations and precedents nationwide. Here's how the codes of an enormous state organization distill to a comprehensive, organized, space-saving and current reference source for your library:

- Each year, Proquest® films the fully updated codes in their entirety and sends them to you, along with a table of contents.
- As the new year begins and codes are amended or repealed, we film the changes and send them to you once a month in the form of a register update.
- In addition to the register updates, you will receive a cumulative table of sections affected approximately every three months. This allows you to quickly locate any additions or amendments to the section you are referencing.
- This updating process requires no time-consuming interfiling.
- The updates are simply slipped into the storage binder provided and you are ready to determine in minutes what, if any, changes have been made to the particular regulations you are researching.

Beginning in 1989, Parts 2-5 of Title 24 are no longer included; The table of sections loose-leaf edition is updated quarterly CA, USA

Comprehensive Index to the California Code of Regulations

No longer published

- Indexes are available through 1999 only

The entire code is indexed by subject, using a controlled thesaurus developed by Proquest's professional staff of lawyers and librarians to facilitate data retrieval. In addition, two authority tables simplify research by citing the Regulations-to-Statutes and Statutes-to-Regulations – a cross-referencing system that makes it easy to move back and forth from regulatory data to regulatory source. The CCR Index also includes a retrospective history table, which cites all changes to regulations, including additions or repealers, from January 1, 1975 to the year of the index.

Constitutions and Laws of the American Indian

This 35mm microfilm program contains approximately 157 separate constitutions, statutes, session acts and resolutions passed by thirteen bodies of semi-independent and self-governing Indian tribes and nations of the United States. All titles listed in the Hargrett bibliography that could be located are included. Additional Indian constitutions and laws discovered have also been filmed. Some of the items were 'last known copies' and their condition is occasionally inferior to that of the rest of the collection; the material was, however, thought too valuable to exclude. Illegible items were not included.

Please inquire for a listing of tribes and nations included; Includes a hardbound copy of A Bibliography of the Constitutions and Laws of the American Indians by Lester Hargrett, Cambridge, Mass. 1947 and a listing of titles included

The FBI Files on the Assassination of President Kennedy

1963 - 1973

The tragic events of November 22, 1963 began a massive, 10-year F.B.I. investigation unmatched by any other before or since. In December 1977 the F.B.I. was forced to release its files on the assassination of President Kennedy under the Freedom of Information Act. This important microfilm edition of The F.B.I. Files was filmed from the first photoduplicated copy of the original documents. Now students and researchers everywhere in the fields of history, political science, journalism, government and law have access to more than 90,000 pages of information about:

- The events of November 22, 1963
- The capture and investigation of alleged assassin Lee Harvey Oswald
- Background information and motives as to the actions of Oswald's murderer, Jack Ruby
- The findings of the Warren Commission - findings that are still questioned to this day
- Information and insight into the day-to-day workings of the F.B.I., one of the world's most powerful law enforcement agencies
- Insights into the character of F.B.I. czar J. Edgar Hoover
- Background for the study of current investigations into alleged unauthorized F.B.I. activities

All legible files are included in this collection, though some have been visibly censored to delete material classified by the F.B.I. as allegedly secret or "exempt from disclosure." The collection is divided into four series, which represent the arrangement of these materials at the time of release:

- Series I - The Kennedy Assassination: Begins with the events of November 22, 1963 and includes letters and memoranda from high government officials, including J. Edgar Hoover, plus material on every lead in the case that had to be pursued
- Series II - Lee Harvey Oswald: The largest series in the collection and contains a massive body of material which paints a comprehensive picture of the accused assassin
- Series III - Jack Leon Ruby (Rubenstein): Contains material obtained from those who knew Jack Ruby, the murderer of Lee Harvey Oswald, plus F.B.I. material on Ruby-Oswald conspiracy theory
- Series IV - The Warren Commission: Contains 32 files on the F.B.I.'s reports to the Warren Commission and memos and reports of investigations conducted by the F.B.I. at the Commission's request. Topics covered include security on the day of the assassination, the later protection of Johnson and the threats against the Commission.

Students and researchers welcome access to these files and find them particularly useful in studying what continues to be an ongoing debate over this important event in American history.

Housing and Urban Affairs (HUD)

1965 - 1980

The 1949 Housing Act committed government to provide "a decent home and suitable environment for every American family." Students and researchers in urban studies, sociology and economics can utilize this unique microfiche program to evaluate and analyze the practical results and bureaucratic realities of America's housing program. Housing and Urban Affairs was filmed from the holdings of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Washington, D.C. The collection contains surveys conducted by HUD or by HUD-sponsored private agencies and concentrates on making these significant but otherwise difficult-to-acquire items available. The collection also includes a separate series for studying housing as a social phenomenon - Housing in the Seventies Working Papers, Volume I and II: National Housing Policy Review Study Papers. The wide range of subjects covered in this collection has been organized into major interest categories for easy access. Covered are such topics as:

- The building industry
- Federal housing programs
- Fair housing
- Historic preservation and restoration
- Housing for the elderly and handicapped
- Urban renewal
- Mortgage finance
- Taxation
- State planning
- Neighborhood rehabilitation

Colleges, universities, public libraries, real estate firms, planning commissions, construction firms and research institutions will find that this collection provides authoritative literature focusing on housing and urban renewal-issues of academic and public concern. Updated to 1980.

National Inventory of Documentary Sources in the United States

Before the publication of NIDS, often the only way researchers could find out what was in an archive or manuscript collection was to travel to the repository. Few of the finding aids prepared by archivists are published. Most are typescripts, obtainable only in certain cases and at considerable expense in time and energy. By bringing together thousands of finding aids from libraries and archives across the United States and reproducing them on microfiche with a unified index, NIDS gives users unparalleled access to federal, state, academic and other documentary sources. Locating finding aids is straightforward using the specially-created index which is in two sections: a list of collections and a Names and Subjects index. Index terms in the Names and Subjects index are taken not only from the title of the finding aid but also from selected subjects covered within it. For example, Ralph Waldo Emerson is listed not only under his own papers but is cross-referenced to the papers of Hawthorne with whom he corresponded. This cross-referencing can uncover rarely noticed connections between events or individuals or ideas. In allowing researchers to examine actual finding aids, NIDS goes further than either NUCMC or RLIN which offer collection-level descriptions, but do not contain detailed listings of the contents of collections. Moreover, NUCMC excludes National Archives and state archival listings. The National Inventory of Documentary Sources in the United States is available in three separate parts:

Federal Records

- National Archives
- Smithsonian Institution Archives
- Presidential Libraries:
 - Hoover
 - Roosevelt
 - Truman
 - Eisenhower,
 - Kennedy
 - Johnson
 - Ford

The National Security Archive

1939 - Present

'All of us who have a professional interest in contemporary security and foreign policy issues can only rejoice at the appearance of this new institutional resource.'

~ Gary Sick, Adjunct Professor of Middle East Politics, Columbia University

Previously classified documents on major foreign policy issues from the State Department and other federal agencies arranged by subject set on microfiche. For several years the National Security Archive, a non-profit research institute, has been working to locate, have declassified, organize and index government documents on key areas of U.S. policy making. Through systematic document searching, sophisticated use of the Freedom of Information Act and computer based cataloging; the Archive has developed an unmatched collection of primary materials indispensable for research and public debate.

- Afghanistan: The Making of U.S. Policy, 1973-1990

An underdeveloped, tribal-based country, deemed strategically insignificant by the U.S. for decades, Afghanistan became a battleground for the bloodiest and costliest superpower proxy war of the 1980s. Afghanistan, 1973-1990 contains a comprehensive, day-by-day record of the making of U.S. policy towards Afghanistan at that time. Over 15,000 pages of primary source materials provide a wealth of information on topics including the overthrow of Afghan King Zahir Shah, events leading to the 'Saur Revolution' in 1978, Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, U.S. attempts to support the Afghan rebels, and negotiations to end the conflict.

- Death Squads, Guerrilla Wars, Covert Operations, and Genocide: Guatemala and the United States, 1954-1999

The Guatemalan military kept detailed records of its death squad operations. The death squad logbook reveals the fate of scores of Guatemalan citizens who were "disappeared" by security forces during the mid-1980s. Replete with photos of 183 victims and coded references to their executions, the document was smuggled out of the Guatemalan army's intelligence files and provided to human rights advocates in February, just two days before a UN-sponsored truth commission released its report, which is in the collection. The collection contains more than 2,000 primary documents, including papers from the CIA, State Department, Defense Department, Agency for International Development, National Security Council, U.S. embassy in Guatemala, White House, and other government sources.

- El Salvador II: War, Peace and Human Rights: The Making of U.S. Policy, 1980-1994

The second set of declassified U.S. records concerning El Salvador, this collection incorporates several thousand U.S. government documents relevant to the human rights cases studied by the United Nations Truth Commission. Following the March 15, 1993, release of the commission's groundbreaking investigation, From Madness to Hope: The 12-Year War in El Salvador, members of the United States Congress wrote to President Clinton asking that the government documents be declassified for public inspection.

- Japan and the United States: Diplomatic, Security and Economic Relations, Part II, 1977-1992
 In this second part of the NSA documentation on Japan and U.S. relations, researchers can review primary source government documents that detail the impact of post-Cold War politics on Japan-U.S. relations. As Japan emerges from this period as an economic power in its own right, events such as the Lockheed and Watergate scandals challenge U.S.-Japan diplomatic and economic relations. With the fall of the Soviet regime, the diplomatic rationale for the Japan-U.S. alliance is further tested. As lesser Cold-War adversaries, China and North Korea, and new regional and non-state based threats begin to challenge a unique North American "unipolar moment", Japan-U.S. relations are redefined. The NSA documents covering this period are of central importance in researching these events and issues, and include documentation of summits between Presidents Carter, Reagan and George H.W. Bush and their Japanese counterparts, policy reviews, internal assessments of various aspects of Japan's foreign, military and economic policies, and intelligence reports, as well as memoranda of conversation and diplomatic cables that provide an intimate view of the dynamics of the U.S.-Japan relationship.

- The Kissinger Transcripts: A Verbatim Record U.S. Diplomacy, 1969-1977

As national security adviser (1969-1975) and secretary of state (1973-1977), Henry A. Kissinger played a central, and sometimes dominating, role in shaping U.S. foreign and military policy during the presidential administrations of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford. In this role Kissinger helped prosecute as well as negotiate an end to the Vietnam War; he carried out secret diplomacy to advance détente with the Soviet Union and rapprochement with China. He pressed for covert operations to destroy the Allende regime in Chile, and implemented the tilt to Pakistan during the 1971 South Asia Crisis. In later years he presided over U.S. policy during the October 1973 Middle East war soon after which he employed a "Shuttle Diplomacy" to contain the Middle East crisis. These are only a few of the prominent political events in which he played a major role. Some three quarters of the 2,163 declassified documents in this collection were produced by Kissinger and his assistants on the National Security Council Staff. Even after Kissinger became Secretary of State, he relied on the NSC system for keeping meeting records, especially of the most sensitive matters such as relations with Beijing and Moscow, Middle East diplomacy, or meetings with the president. For those events when he did not rely on the NSC staff to record a meeting, he depended on a State Department country desk director or more senior officials, such as deputy or assistant secretaries of state, to prepare the 'memcons'. A noteworthy feature of the records of Kissinger's memcons is that they are literally verbatim records of the meetings.

- Terrorism and U.S. Policy, 1968-2002
The principal focus of this collection is international terrorism. Beginning with the July 1968 hijacking of an El Al jet to Algiers, the first politically motivated hijacking and hostage-taking episode of its kind, the set provides coverage of literally dozens of incidents over the years. Special attention has gone to episodes that targeted Americans or U.S. interests. While the documents treat events from all over the world, the editors have given particular emphasis to the Middle East and Southwest Asia because of the special importance of that region for understanding this subject, particularly after September 11. One of the highlights of the collection is the selection of material won as the result of the lawsuit filed by former AP reporter and hostage Terry A. Anderson. Those documents, on file at the National Security Archive, include highly sensitive reports from U.S. military and other intelligence elements that give important insights into the scope and depth of intelligence reporting and analysis about terrorism in the 1980s. Another feature of the published collection is a complete set of the declassified records of meetings of the Cabinet Committee to Combat Terrorism, one of the most important decision-making bodies on terrorism during the Nixon and Ford administrations.

- Cuban Missile Crisis Revisited: An International Collection of Documents; from the Bay of Pigs to the Brink of Nuclear War, 1959 - 1975
 This compilation of documents contains some extraordinary new documentation on the Cuban Missile Crisis that will enhance historical research for years to come. Recently released Russian records will shed light on the decision making of the Soviet Politburo, on previously unknown military deployments of tactical nuclear weapons, and on the type and tenor of communications with Fidel Castro. Cuban documentation will provide historians with a better understanding of Castro's independence during and after the crisis, as well as on the capabilities of Cuban intelligence to track and counter the covert efforts of the Kennedy administration to roll back the Cuban revolution. The U.S. documents in this collection provide new insight into what went wrong at the Bay of Pigs, the decision making process of Kennedy's executive committee, strategic planning of the U.S. military, and previously unidentified confrontations with Soviet forces. This document set contains 1,463 records, covering a date range from 1959, when Castro took power, all the way through the mid 1970s when the issue of Soviet submarines docking for repairs in Cuba briefly recreated the tension of the missile crisis in Washington's relations with Moscow.

The National Security Archive's collection on U.S.-Korean relations covers both diplomatic, security, and economic relations between the United States and its ally, South Korea; and challenges to the U.S. posed by an adversarial North Korea. It spans events dating from the Nixon administration's response to the April 15, 1969 downing of a U.S. EC-121 reconnaissance plane over the Sea of Japan by North Korean MiG-17s to efforts during the Clinton years to deter Pyongyang's nuclear ambitions. The collection contains 1,697 records released by the State Department, the Pentagon, the Central Intelligence Agency, and other agencies, as well as historical material compiled through research at the National Archives and the presidential libraries. The many newly-declassified documents in the set deal with a wide range of significant themes and events. These include detailed contingency plans for military strikes against North Korea in response to the EC-121 incident; growing concern over North Korea's economic instability; the leadership transition from Kim Il Sung to Kim Jong Il in Pyongyang; political liberalization in South Korea (from the Kwangju uprising to the election of Kim Dae Jung); U.S.-South Korea economic relations; a historic summit meeting between the leaders of South and North Korea in 2000, and secret discussions with other powers, including Japan, China and Russia, aimed at coordinating an international diplomatic response to North Korea's threat to regional security.

This collection is comprised of the data compiled over several years by Jeffrey Richelson, one of the world's leading experts on intelligence that used it as the basis for a new, widely acclaimed book, Spying on the Bomb: American Nuclear Intelligence from Nazi Germany to Iran and North Korea (W.W. Norton, 2006). Writing in The Wall Street Journal, Gabriel Schoenfeld of Commentary Magazine called it "an engrossing book" and "an exhaustively researched account," while Stanford's David Holloway praised Richelson in The New York Times for having "brought together a huge amount of information" that "could hardly be more timely." Now the once largely inaccessible primary source material Richelson used to write his ground-breaking account is available - in one user-friendly place - for researchers to draw upon. Consisting of over 600 documents and 8,300 pages, this is by far the most comprehensive collection of the U.S. Intelligence community's intensive spying effort on the world's nuclear, biological, chemical, ballistic missile, and military space programs from World War II to the present. The records come from an extensive series of Freedom of Information Act requests and in-depth archival research and provide the most complete available picture of the weapons of mass destruction and military space programs of Iraq, China, the Soviet Union, South Africa, France, India and other countries over the past 60 years.

This collection documents the deadliest conflict in modern U.S. history prior to the current war against terrorism. The goal was to assemble both classic and relatively well-known documentary sources as well as the most recent declassified materials, making a single comprehensive resource for primary substantive research on the Vietnam conflict. The set consists primarily of documents from the White House, National Security Council, State Department, Defense Department, and other federal agencies involved in policy-making on the war in Southeast Asia. It also features detailed reporting from the field as well as analysis from the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, American embassies overseas, U.S. regional military commands, especially the Military Assistance Command Vietnam (MACV), and the uniformed military services. There are also certain documents from foreign sources, including the governments of South Vietnam, North Vietnam, the Soviet Union, China, the United Kingdom, and others. - U.S. Policy in the Vietnam War, Part II, 1969-1975

This collection had its origins in the National Security Archive's interest in documenting the deadliest conflict in modern U.S. history. The goal was to create a collection presenting classic sources, relatively well-known documentary information, and the most recently declassified materials to produce a comprehensive resource for primary substantive research on the Vietnam conflict. Part II of this collection presents the first major selection of Vietnam War primary source documents from the Nixon and Ford administrations to be made directly available to scholars. There are important materials in every subset: "Pacification/Phoenix" subset materials highlight one of the most controversial programs of the Vietnam era; the collection also features the Nixon administration's deliberations on withdrawals from South Vietnam, the 1970 invasion of Cambodia, and the best available sources on the final peace talks and the "Christmas Bombing." The "Fall of South Vietnam" subset contains detailed coverage on the end of the Saigon government and the Vietnam War. Along with important CIA interpretive materials, there is a separate index to the Gravel Pentagon Papers, as well as the fully declassified diplomatic volumes of the Pentagon Papers. These and other materials are available for research on the premises of the National Security Archive.

The Official Transcripts of the Watergate Trial

1974 - 1975

In October 1974, the eyes of the world were focused on the United States as the trial of H.R. Haldeman, John Erlichman, John Mitchell, Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson began. Nixon had resigned and the Watergate co-conspirators had to answer to the court for their alleged involvement in the break-in and coverup. The official court transcripts of this famous trial are now available in their entirety to students in political science, history, journalism and government. The New York Times acquired these transcripts daily to support the efforts of its on-the-scene reporters during the trial. This historic collection filmed from those transcripts includes the day-to-day account of the trial proceedings from October 15, 1974 through January 1, 1975, plus the sentencing of the defendants in February 1975. Watergate is a topic that sparks on-going interest and allegations even today and access to the nearly 10,000 pages in the official transcript is in demand as valuable background file for exploring the Watergate affair. These documents represent a permanent, timely collection that will only increase in historical value in the coming years.

Press Releases Issued by and Speeches by Officials of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and Predecessor Agencies

1934 - 1978

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is one of the U.S. government's most important and complex agencies. It has evolved into its present powerful form through a series of predecessor agencies beginning with the creation of the Federal Housing Agency in 1934. This microfiche collection offers students in urban affairs and planning, political science, government and communications an unusual overview of HUD through its official newsletters, press releases and press digests. For researchers, this authoritative literature covers virtually every federal program and policy relating to housing and urban affairs. The collection begins with the creation of the Federal Housing Administration (1934) and follows its transformation into the United States Housing Authority (1937), the Housing and Home Finance Agency (1947), through the current Department of Housing and Urban Development created in 1965. Among the milestone HUD programs included are:

- Low-rent housing and slum clearance (1937)
- Rehabilitation loans (1964)
- "Fair Housing" (1968)

More than 60,000 pages are covered by the base collection and the 1979 update to this collection, which were filmed from the holdings of the Library of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington, D.C.

Records of the Children's Bureau

1912 - 1969

The publication of the microfilm edition of the Children's Bureau records is an important event for scholars of women, the family and the welfare state. Molly Ladd-Taylor American Civilization Program, Brown University. Though the Children's Bureau is one of the least well-known Federal agencies, its records provide one of the richest sources for an understanding of 20th century American society. Founded in 1912 as part of the Federal Government's new commitment to promoting individual and family welfare, the Children's Bureau played an active role in the design and administration of many important social welfare measures including the 1921 Sheppard-Towner Maternity and Infancy Act to reduce infant mortality and the campaign to reduce child labor in the 1930s. The Bureau's voluminous records, including correspondence, research reports, radio scripts, brochures, bills and laws, court hearings and speeches, represent the largest and most important collection of primary material for the study of the family and the health and well being of children in the 20th century. Not only do the documents enable researchers to trace the various stages of Federal involvement in the welfare of children and the development of family law, they also throw a fascinating light on the way welfare policies affected ordinary women.

Records of the Fair Employment Practice Committee

1941 - 1946

Proclamations of equality and decrees of non-discrimination are at best hollow documents unless enforced by the governments and courts that mandated them. One of the landmark attempts at bridging this gap between theory and practice in the area of equal employment opportunity can be studied through this collection. Nearly all records of the Fair Employment Practice Committee (FEPC) during its five-year existence as a Federal investigatory agency is contained in this primary research source. Established in 1941 by Executive Order of Franklin D. Roosevelt to end discrimination against blacks in the defense industry, the Committee was charged to deal with any accusations of discrimination that might arise. In five years it investigated more than 14,000 complaints - 80 percent based on race, 14 percent on national origin and the remaining six percent on creed or religion. Students in African-American studies, labor history, social history, defense, economics and civil rights can access these records as a recent historical base collection for their research into contemporary labor discrimination.

Included in the more than 500,000 pages of official documents are: correspondence, case records, field reports from FEPC regional offices, minutes of FEPC meetings, internal studies, memoranda and individual workers' records. These documents are divided into two main series - Headquarters Records and Field Records. The latter series is subdivided into regional records covering the country. The FEPC dealt solely with the needs of minority workers and had specific jurisdiction over: complaints against the federal government, complaints against employers and employees' unions under contract with the federal government and complaints against employers and unions engaged in war production. Although the Committee depended on its powers of persuasion or on the cooperation of government agencies for enforcement authority, it contributed richly to promoting the cause of civil rights in the workplace. Offering as it does both statistical and human insights into labor and race relations, this collection is considered a primary research source, essential for any comprehensive study of civil liberties in America.

Reform of Local Government Structures in the United States

1945 - 1971

...a microfiche collection with a printed finding aid that assembles in one package non-serial and non-periodical materials such as legislative studies and research reports, reports of official commissions and civic groups, studies and reports of state and local governments that deal with organizational reform on local government. It is those materials in the area of public affairs that are often characterized as "difficult to obtain", "out of the mainstream" or "fugitive". In bringing some of this material together in one place, the package performs a service... "Significant" documents and reports for the period covered are included... As for technical aspects, the set gets very high marks. Each fiche is clearly marked with document descriptions and the document number is clearly displayed, making for easy filing and retrieval. The filmed copy is clear and legible even though some of the original copy is aged and was not printed on the best quality paper. The contrast is excellent. The workmanship is among the best this reviewer has seen ... The microfiche document amounts to a notable research collection and provides many documents not easily available. Any library involved with public affairs would be wise to consider its purchase.

State Census

These state censuses differ significantly from the census reports gathered and published by the federal government since statistical data needed by the state were often of a far more select and exacting nature than those required for Congressional apportionment. The state censuses contain information, some of which is unavailable elsewhere, about the population by age, race (slave or free), national origin; number of militia by town or county; statistics of railroad miles completed; value of manufacturers, minerals, agricultural products, etc.; blind, deaf, insane; paupers, convicts, schools, etc. Some states recorded data by individual names making the censuses an important genealogical source. This microfiche program includes all reports listed in State Censuses: An Annotated Bibliography of Censuses of Population Taken after the Year 1970 by States and Territories of the United States, prepared by Henry J. Dubester, chief, Census Library Project, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., 1948. Selected items mentioned in Dubester's footnotes are also included.

State Secession Debates

1859 - 1862

One central issue which faced the fifteen southern and border states during the mid-19th century was the question of slavery. Eleven states could not accept the programs of President Lincoln and seceded from the Union. Four states - Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri - decided in either legislative session or convention not to secede from the Union. The complete records of debate for all states in which secession was an active issue are included in this 35mm microfilm program.

U.S. State Documents Series

1960 - Present

OmniSys World Literature Collections (OWL)

This collection was begun in 1960, with titles selected from the Council of State Government's Legislative Research Checklist. The collection covers a wide variety of issues, including city planning, housing, welfare, public health, crime and crime prevention, drug abuse, women's situations, Native Americans, juvenile delinquency, prisons, water resources, ecology and the political process. In 1972 the coverage was considerably broadened, utilizing the Monthly Checklist of State Publications, the National Union Catalog and document checklists from the individual states.

Available in topical subsets.

United States v. Rosenberg

The debate over the Rosenbergs' innocence is as contested today as it was nearly 50 years ago. Those who believe they are innocent see the husband and wife as either heroic martyrs or tragic scapegoats. Others see them as victims of alleged anti-Semitic views held by many high-ranking U.S. Government officials during that time. Those convinced of their guilt see them as vicious traitors who put the lives of every U.S. citizen in jeopardy during one of the nation's most vulnerable times. This microfilm collection includes the United States Supreme Court transcripts, the Rosenberg and Sobell Court of Appeals Briefs and the U.S. Supreme Court briefs. There are also copies of the applications for judicial clemency and motions for reduction of sentences, as well as pages pertaining to an attempt for a re-trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence. Though this collection is by no means a complete record of all motions and proceedings for this trial, it nevertheless provides valuable insights into one of the most famous cases in U. S. history.

The Warren Commission Hearings and Report on the Assassination of President Kennedy

1964 - 1965

A United States president was assassinated in broad daylight on a Dallas street and years later the answers to many questions about that grim event remain shrouded in suspicion. The findings of the Warren Commission still provoke debate and controversy. Consequently, the Warren Commission Report is in great demand and it will continue to be sought out as a research source for a long time to come. Now students in political science, history and government, or anyone interested in analyzing the data and obtaining background information on the assassination will find the material they require in this collection. During the course of its massive investigation, the Warren Commission took testimony from 552 witnesses to the assassination and related events, used more than 2,300 investigative reports from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and incorporated 800 reports from the Secret Service into its findings. The Commission also reviewed the actions of several federal agencies regarding their participation in matters relating to the investigation. Among notable public figures who were called to testify under oath before the commission were Dean Rusk, C. Douglas Dillon, John A. McCone and J. Edgar Hoover. The 27 volumes of the original hearings and reports were originally published in 1964-65 by the Government Printing Office. Now out of print, these volumes are conveniently available through this microform edition. Students and researchers will use these documents well into the future or as long as there are unanswered questions pertaining to this tragic, historical event in American history.

The Whig Almanac and Politician's Register: The Daily News Almanac and Political Register

1801 - 2000

Campaigning for public office is at best a gamble. Savvy politicians, therefore, use any and all resources at their disposal that give facts and figures to help them make vital campaign decisions. A unique, historical record of two almanacs used by politicians in the 19th and early 20th centuries is available through this microfiche collection. The Whig Almanac and The Daily News Almanac are two of the most factual political almanacs ever published in America and they provide important information not available in any other single reference source. Students of American political, economic and social history can now couple this information with other historical data on elections in the United States during these periods to analyze the manner in which different political candidates used the same information to structure campaigns and platforms. The Whig Almanac, published by the New York Tribune and the Daily News Almanac, published by the Chicago Daily News provide a factual framework on a broad range of topics, such as:

- Political constituencies - data on birth rates, marriages and divorces, religious demographics, crime and education
- Election returns - information from around the country divided by state, county and local districts
- Economic indicators - such information as stock market prices, wholesale commodity prices, banking statistics and import/export figures
- Travel information - flying times, railroad mileages and postal rates

These statistics also provide researchers with valuable information on the changing demographic makeup in different areas of the country at any given point in time. The collection provides an important research aid, especially when coupled with other political, economic and social historical resources.

Domain (Chiba Pref.) in the Edo Period堀田家文書

1603 - 1867

The Shimofusa Sakura domain (present Chiba Prefecture, east of Tokyo) was a representative domain in hereditary vassalage to the Tokugawa family in the Edo period (1603-1867). Its frequent changes of fief (transfer of the clan governing area ordered by the Tokugawa Government to make the clan a less powerful competitor to the Government), were recorded by the clan family in large volumes of records. Masayoshi Hotta (1810-1864) the clan master at the end of the Edo period, was a competent government official who was in charge of the diplomatic administration in the Government amidst the political confusion caused by the visit of Admiral Perry. Thus this set of his records also contains much material concerning the diplomatic history at the end of the Edo period.

India Office Records: Home Miscellaneous Series

1600 - 1900

The process of international colonization and its effects - even centuries later - on the countries and peoples governed is one that is still debated in academic and public circles. And the British colonial model is the one most frequently used as a basis for these analyses. Researchers in Asian and Indian studies, British colonial history, political science, and diplomatic history find in this collection a wealth of resource materials to support studies of British business and military activities in India and Burma from 1600 through 1900. Selected from the India Office Records Library, the documents highlight the early trade of the famous East India Company, the role of the company in British empire-building, the Indian mutiny of 1858, and the subsequent period of crown sovereignty over Indian territory. India Office Records also contains historical information about the men who shaped the British Empire in Asia, including:

- Robert Clive, who became governor of Bengal in 1765 after securing the Bengal territory from the French and subjugating the native rulers
- Warren Hastings, who ruled as governor general of Bengal from 1772-1785, and who preserved the Indian empire despite threats by Marathas and the rival French forces
- Captain Henry Gurney, whose mission to Thailand opened Bangkok to Western traders

The collection features detailed and revealing documents that record the economic and political processes of ruling an empire halfway around the world. Included are diaries kept during the Indian mutiny, records of sales and delivery of goods in London, registers of exports, the correspondence of the British Administration in the Punjab, and rich accounts of British military campaigns and trading expeditions. Libraries will find their students and researchers using this collection of materials extensively as it not only illuminates the British Empire in Asia, but also provides insight into Indian culture and history during this period.

Kades, Charles L. Charles L. Kades Papers

1946 - 1947

This collection deals with the formation of the Japanese Constitution of 1947. Kades, Deputy Director of the Government section of SCAP (the Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers) during the Occupation, played a leading role in drafting a model constitution for the Japanese people. His papers are divided into two parts. The first part includes the tentative revision of the Meiji Constitution by Joji Matsumoto (Jan. 4, 1946), then continues with successive drafts of the Japanese constitution and concludes with the final U.S. Department of State version of May 3, 1947. Japanese and English versions of most drafts are included. The remaining part of the collection includes memoranda, committee minutes, letters, checksheets and an imperial message regarding revision of the constitution.

Memoranda of Conveyance (Memories van Overgave) of Officials of the Dutch East Indies*

1849 - 1962

Starting in 1849, the government of The Netherlands ordered all of their civil servants leaving office in the East Indies Colony to write a memorandum of conveyance for their successors, containing a careful review of political developments in the district concerned and also giving background details on places, persons and issues important for the successor to know about. This has served as an important reference source for historians and other students of Indonesia in the colonial period. These records constitute this collection.

花井卓蔵文書

1868 - 1931

This collection, of particular interest to all those studying Japanese pre-war legal history, constitutes the papers and records of Hanai Takuzo (1868-1931). Hanai was a famous criminal law attorney who participated in the trials for both the Hibiya Incendiary Affair and the Taikyaku Incident. He was also a member of the Upper House and Lower House of Japan. During the period when he was in the Diet, he played an important and active role in modern Japanese lawmaking as a member of the Legislation Committee. These papers shed light on legislation in which Hanai was personally involved, as well as on the general process of lawmaking.

War and Decolonization in Indonesia *

1940 - 1950

At the end of WWII the independent Republic of Indonesia was proclaimed by Sukarno and Hatta, but the Dutch government - having held the colony for some 350 years - was unwilling to grant Indonesia independence. Thus began over four years of unrest and civil war, increasing intervention by the international community and finally the transfer of sovereignty to the Republic in 1949. Now many of the archives of leading figures and bodies on the Dutch side are being opened and this series makes such papers available on microfiche.

Williams, Justin. Justin Williams Papers

1946 - 1952

Justin Williams, Sr. was chief of the Legislative Division (renamed Parliamentary and Political Division in 1948) of the Government Section of the Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers (SCAP) from 1946 to 1952. He made a significant contribution to the political reorientation of Japan during the occupation period, overseeing matters pertaining to the national government, local governments, political parties and national elections. His major responsibilities were:

- To strengthen the Japanese Diet so that it could assume its role as the highest organ of state power under the new constitution
- To keep the Supreme Commander informed on Japanese politics and elections
- To ensure Diet enactment of legislation desired by SCAP
- His papers, now available on microfilm, fully document the undertaking of these duties

Appendices to the Votes and Proceedings and Reports of the Select Committee on Public Petitions

1817 - 1900

Public Petitions are a most important documentary source for the study of British and world history in the 19th century. They covered a wide range of subjects including slavery, the industrial revolution, the Peterloo massacre and the transportation system as well as many religious issues and major issues affecting every town and village in Britain such as the repeal of the Corn Laws. Many petitions relating to Ireland are also recorded. From 1817 selected petitions were printed in full in an appendix to the Votes and Proceedings of the House of Commons. This series of Appendices continued until 1890. From 1833 a Select Committee was elected at the beginning of each session to print in extenso or in part, and to report on all petitions other than those that 'complain of undue returns or relate to Private Bills'. The two series (neither of which is contained in the Parliamentary Papers Bound Set) run in parallel but do not duplicate each other and together provide a complete printed record of petitions presented to the House of Commons.

The Dartmouth Papers: The American Papers of William Legge, Second Earl of Dartmouth*

1731 - 1801

These papers are a major source for the history of the American Revolution. William Legge was Secretary of State for the American Colonies from 1772 to 1775. The papers also illuminate 18th century British government and politics.

Digest Registers of Births, Marriages and Burials for England & Wales*

1600 - 1837

The Society of Friends has a reputation for good record-keeping. Its original registers were passed to the Public Records Office and there is a full set at the library of the Society of Friends. These are known as digest registers and are arranged quarterly by region. For each 'quarterly meeting' there is birth, marriage and a burial register, with names grouped alphabetically and chronologically within each letter.

Diplomatic Correspondence of British Ministers to the Russian Court at St Petersburg

1704 - 1776

These documents, transcribed from originals in the British Museum and Public Record Office, provide a detailed and comprehensive record of diplomatic and commercial relations between the two nations. Over 9,000 pages of letters are reproduced on microfiche, mainly in English, their original language, with a few in French. The printed index, arranged in chronological order, gives the date and names of the correspondents for all 3,342 items as well as providing biographical information on each of the diplomats.

Division Lists

1836 - 1909

The Division Lists give the results of every vote taken in the House of Commons and list the names of those who voted for and against each motion. They are essential for any historian wishing to establish the voting record of individual members or the voting for a particular issue. Before 1909 this information is only found in the Division Lists, a House of Commons series that is not part of the Parliamentary Papers Bound Set. After 1909 the Division Lists are published in Hansard.

Edinburgh Directories*

1773 - 1975

Complete collection of Directories relating to Edinburgh charting the commercial development of the Scottish Capital. Includes full listings of streets, maps, commercial and trade directories. The Edinburgh Directories are a unique and reliable collection of street, commercial, trades, law, court, parliamentary and postal directories relating to the city of Edinburgh, which provide an excellent opportunity to discover and research the social and economical development of Scotland from the 18th century onwards. The Directories are recognized as being of great importance in establishing and understanding commerce and trading patterns between Scotland and its neighboring countries during the previous centuries. They also provide a wealth of detailed information regarding residential names, occupations and addresses and are therefore an ideal source for genealogical study. The Directories include maps of the historical city which indicate trade and residential origins and development.

English Poor Laws

1639 - 1890

The early English Poor Laws had a great influence on the development of international public policy regarding the poor and unemployed. This collection provides an unparalleled opportunity for researchers in the fields of sociology, public health, social work, psychology, history and others, to study the evolving laws over a 200-year period. Filmed from the archives at Sutro Library, a branch of the California State Library, the collection contains books, pamphlets and public papers arranged by date. Included are materials from England, Scotland and Ireland, such as:

- London labour and the London poor by Henry Mayhew, renowned for its clinical descriptions of living conditions in the slums
- A 20-year run of the accounts and expenditures of the parish of Paddington
- The Local Government Board reports as presented to the British Parliament
- Reports from more obscure institutions, such as Princess Mary's Village Homes for Little Girls and the Destitute Children's Dinner Society
- Other works outlining the philosophical, economic, or sociological basis on which policy was formulated

Pre-1850 material focuses on the able-bodied unemployed poor. This group of dependent poor aroused the most controversy and inspired passionate writings on their treatment. Various proposals were submitted ranging from the construction of workhouses to a national system of labor exchanges. Joseph Townsend's Dissertation on the poor laws, published anonymously in 1786, supported the abolition of the Poor Law system, declaring that the trouble came from the Poor Laws themselves. Material published after 1850 focuses on the care of the poor, including discussions of the relationship between sanitary conditions and disease and poverty and crime. Items concerning poor children, delinquency and health also appear in documents from this era. Examples of this are Florence Nightingale's Suggestions for improving the nursing service of hospitals and on the method of training nurses for the sick poor and Mary Bayly's Ragged homes and how to mend them. Containing rare and fascinating material - much of it unavailable from any other source - English Poor Laws is sure to be a unique and highly valued addition to any library's collection.

Great Britain Board of Trade/Overseas Department Economic Surveys

1921 - 1961

These economic surveys of foreign countries published under the aegis of the Board of Trade have a virtue rare in government publications - they are concise and to the point. Written by the Commercial Secretary in the British Embassy or Consulate in the country in question, each report provides a narrative account of the country's economic, financial and trading situation backed by tables of detailed statistics. The statistical information is of particular interest since much of it came from local government sources and was not necessarily published elsewhere.

House of Commons Parliamentary Papers, 1975/1976

1975 - 1976

'I would recommend this collection to any library which maintains, or is considering the acquisition of a current set of Parliamentary Papers . . . The quality of the filming is excellent, with good contrast and sharp images . . . Having the Parliamentary Papers in microformat is going to help us realize considerable savings, building costs and storage space.'

~ Suzanne Dodson, University of British Columbia Library, Microform Review

The microfiche edition of current Parliamentary Papers includes Command Papers, House of Commons Papers and Bills. It is published monthly, two months in arrears of the full size edition and is accompanied by a free Monthly Index, on CD-ROM and COM, specially compiled by professional indexers with an intimate knowledge of the daily business of the House of Commons.

Minutes and Reports of the Committee of Council on Education*

1839 - 1899

The Committee of (the Privy) Council on Education was established in 1839 primarily to distribute government grants to the elementary schools run by voluntary societies. This Education Department soon developed in effect into a ministry of education, which was reconstituted in 1899 as the Board of Education. The annual minutes (from 1854 called reports) contain a wealth of information on the working of government educational policy and on schooling in particular towns and areas.

Reports from Committees of the House of Commons (Printed but not inserted in the Journals of the House)

1715 - 1801

The reports from the select committees between 1715 and 1801 contain a wealth of material on virtually all aspects of 18th century life. They cover an enormously wide range of subjects and provide the single most important source of information for the activities of the East India Company during this period. Although printed, these reports were never published in the Journal of the House and this is the first reissue of the sixteen-volume set since it was published in 1803-1806. Copies of the original edition are very scarce.

Statistics Canada

Statistical publications are often difficult to acquire. Micromedia ProQuest has done the work for libraries by gathering key documents and making them available on microfiche and libraries can purchase the documents on subscription. The Statistics Canada Microfiche Collection is the easiest way to ensure that your library has the current publications of Statistics Canada including the latest Census of Canada releases. The Microfiche Collection is shipped monthly. The Micromedia ProQuest microfiche collection of Statistics Canada documents is based on the old catalogued series of statistical documents. Non-statistical publications from Statistics Canada are included in our Microlog microfiche collection. Most of these publications are cited in the Canadian Research Index. This collection offers several important advantages for libraries:

- Statistics Canada microfiche save 95% of the space required for paper copies
- Microfiche is a cost-effective way to ensure you have a complete collection of current and historical documents issued
- Current publications arrive once a month, sorted and ready for immediate use
- Micromedia ProQuest staff include Internet documents for preservation on microfiche to ensure these documents will always be available
- Micromedia's collection includes publications issued by Statistics Canada since the 1851 Census
- Starting in 1996 the microfiched publications are cited in the Canadian Research Index

The French Revolution Research Collection

1787 - 1799

An unprecedented wealth of primary sources in French (over a million pages from around the world) makes this collection the most comprehensive research tool for the French Revolution; clear organization and multiple access points make it the most valuable. Published in cooperation with the Bibliothèque Nationale, this exhaustive microfiche archive is the first and only source to: Combine thousands of rare documents and present them in permanent archival form; Deliver 1,145,000 pages of sources from libraries, archives and private collections around the world. Index every document and image with multiple access points; Cover the Revolution from every angle of interest, greatly enhancing the potential for new scholarly contributions. Among the materials included are newspapers, memoirs, anthologies, bibliographies, pamphlets, posters, essays, books, plays, theater programs, financial statements and church documents. They're organized in two main categories:

- Common Core Sections
 - Newspapers: The early Revolution saw an explosion in periodical and ephemeral newspapers. The 100,000 original pages reproduced here represent the full range of papers active during the 1790s.
 - Memoirs and Histories: These 167 eyewitness accounts provide invaluable perspectives. The great Berville and Barrière edition of memoirs forms the heart of the section, with many more esoteric writings.
 - Basic Printed Collections: 9th and 20th century anthologies of primary sources.
 - Bibliographical and Research Tools: Some 20,000 pages of otherwise hard-to-find catalogs, inventories and bibliographies.
- Thematic Sections
 - Pre-Revolutionary Debate: Monographs, pamphlets and other ephemeral materials.
 - Political Themes: Political activism, the response of local authorities, works by major political thinkers; from Paris and the provinces Resistance to the Revolution, with materials from archives in the provinces reflecting anti-revolutionary sentiment among property owners and the poor.
 - Religion: Approximately 1,900 items reflecting the central role of religion in the Revolution, the sale of church lands, the role of the church under the Directory, the emancipation of Jews and Protestants and more.
 - The Reorganization of Society: The abolition of corporate society and feudalism, the countryside, towns and townspeople, women and the family and public assistance. The Economy. The attempt to impose revolutionary ideals on trade, finance, agriculture, industry and technology and the results, quantitative and qualitative.
 - War and the Colonies: The structure of the Revolutionary army and navy and the collapse of French colonies overseas.
 - Culture: Revolutionary expression in music, theater, poetry, fiction, calendar dates, festivals, monuments, costume, fashion, images, symbols and allegories; plus resistance to change and the survival of traditional forms.

The Thematic Sections provide cross-referencing to Common Core materials so researchers can easily find all materials on topics of interest. In addition, an analytical index covers every source reproduced, with conceptual and thematic entries as well as names, places, events, titles, authors and other conventional listings.

Statistical Sources under the Empire

1795 - 1815

Most historians and statisticians are aware of the immense amount of regional description and recording undertaken in France between 1795 and 1815 by the governments of the Directoire, the Consulat and the Empire. This massive body of primary source documents is indispensable to students of statistics and of great value to historians, sociologists, economists and demographers. The collection consists of four sections including methodological works (government questionnaires to prefects, essays on statistics), fundamental periodicals of a statistical nature, general works on a national scale and the mémoires or replies by prefects to questionnaires from the national government.

Latin American and Caribbean Official Statistical Serials

1821 - 1982

The past century has seen fundamental political and economic changes in Latin America and the Caribbean, both inside each country and in their interdependent relationships with the economies of other nations. This microfiche collection of official statistical serials provides scholars charting these political and economic shifts with an invaluable primary resource. The selection includes physical, economic, financial, social and demographic statistics issued by the governments of nearly every Latin American and Caribbean country. Many of the titles run from the 19th or early 20th centuries to the 1980s, allowing individual subjects to be studied over an extensive period of time.

Parral Papers

1631 - 1821

This unique microfilm collection represents perhaps the most definitive historical record of the Southwestern United States and Mexico. Spanning the years 1631-1821, El Archivo de Hildalgo del Parral is a collection of official records, directives, treaties, court transcripts, wills, letters and other documents relating to the Spanish Colonial Era in "Nueva Vizcaya" - the region now including much of the southwestern United States and much of Mexico. Over 360,000 manuscript pages, written in Spanish, provide primary reference on the administration of government, Indian uprisings, slavery, public entertainment, military organization, silver mining, official residences, crime and punishment and civil law. Since the history of the Southwest is often clouded by fiction, the Parral Papers benefit serious researchers attempting to uncover accurate historical data. Included are references to Father Eusebio Koni, the accusation of Juan Mange by the Jesuits, a report on the assassination of the governor of New Mexico in 1644, plus an account of the 1,720 peace treaties with the Apaches and the Texans.

Belarusian Parliamentary Papers (Parlamentskie dokumenti Belarusi)

1990 - 1995

Minutes of the 12th Congressional Session of the Supreme Soviet of the Republic of Belarus. The work of the 12th Congressional Session closely reflected major political events in Belarus: the country's independence in 1991, the adoption of the new Constitution in 1994, introduction of a number of new bills and resolutions, etc. This collection, covering the minutes of the 12th Congress, includes 730 issues of published transcripts from the personal archives of Aieg Trusau, a well known Belarusian politician, historian and one of the leaders of the Belarusian Social-Democratic movement. Of special interest are transcripts of the speeches of A.G. Lukashenko.

Business and City Directories from Russia and the USSR

1892 - 1940

These directories offer a broad picture of Russian society in an age of dynamic social and economic change. As Russia's modernization accelerated toward the end of the 19th and beginning of the 20th centuries, social identities were in flux as peasants moved to urban areas to join the burgeoning industrial labor force; scions of the traditional nobility were selling their increasingly impoverished estates to become members of the nascent professional middle class; and government bureaucrats began filling positions in newly created government organs. The city and business directories capture these phenomena in a unique way by detailing these social and demographic changes of new Russia in a public, commercial medium. The following directory collections are available:

No guide available; Alphabetical index by last name included in each volume

2,722 fiche (Individual fiche may be purchased)

- Ves Sankt-Peterburg (All St. Petersburg), 1892-1940

For St. Petersburg, no volumes were published for 1918-1922 or for 1936-1938. The library's holdings are complete and also include the series Address Book of the City of St. Petersburg, 1892-1902. It was clearly the original on which the All Petersburgs were based. While not every person in St. Petersburg was listed, most were, including their professions. Furthermore, each volume includes an alphabetical index so one does not need to know the address in advance. Librarians, historians and demographers are likely to be familiar with Suvorin's directories, although, until now, virtually no library in the West has a complete run. All duplicate fiche are manufactured in the U.S. on silver halide film. Each volume lists houses according to districts and streets with names of owners and their professions. Local maps help bring the city to life for the researcher. The volumes also list all government offices and their employees. Searches for particular family lines or persons can be carried out using the last-name index, which also includes first name and patronymic.

- Vsia Moskva (All Moscow), 1875-1917

The collection covers 42 years and in most cases there is one volume per year (for 1895, 1896 and 1903 there are two volumes per year.) Nine of the volumes in the collection contain maps, with a total of 70 maps for 1903 and 1904 alone. These directories list names and addresses of all Moscow's inhabitants with their occupation and place of work; Lists of streets, with buildings and house-owners arranged by streets and police precincts; City plans, including special maps of theaters, circuses, etc; Lists of personnel in state, public and private institutions in Moscow; Churches and monasteries (with brief information on priests); Hospitals and personnel lists for each hospital; Practicing physicians arranged by specialization and location (street address); Lawyers, their assistants, architects and artists; and Factories, plants and companies in Moscow and its suburbs. The All Moscow directories are excellent genealogical resources for researchers, as well as for people trying to find information on family members who lived in the Russian Empire and later the Soviet Union. This collection is highly recommended for all libraries with Slavic, genealogy or general reference collections.

Russia; In Russian

867 fiche (Individual fiche may be purchased)

- VSIA Rossiia (All Russia) & Ves SSSR (All USSR), 1895-1931

Each volume contains lists of people who owned businesses - from large factories to small grocery stores - in cities and towns throughout the entire Russian Empire and later the Soviet Union. Some of the volumes are organized by guberniia, with general information about each guberniia in an introductory section, others by profession. Each volume includes a list of government officials and public institutions. The business directories, called Spravochnaia i adresnaia kniga (Reference and Address Book), combined with the city directories, are among the best genealogical sources for researchers, as well as for people trying to locate their families who lived in the Russian Empire and later the Soviet Union. As a large number of the names listed are Jewish, the directories should be of particular interest to Jewish families researching family origins. Each person is listed by his or her first name, last name and patronymic. There is a chapter for each guberniia. The first section of each chapter contains general information about the guberniia, including statistical data, names of the officials, etc. At the beginning of each directory, there is a list of government officials and public institutions for the whole country, including officials in foreign service. There is also a "Dictionary of Popular Practical Medicine and Hygiene." Most of the directories have advertisements for small businesses, which provide a vast amount of information about business practices of the time.

Gubernskie Vedomosti

1838 - 1920

The Gubernskie Vedomosti were pre-revolutionary local governmental newspapers published throughout the Russian Empire largely between 1838 and 1917 (although a few titles were issued through 1920.) The newspapers were also published in Ukraine, Belarus, Poland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, countries of the Caucasus and Central Asia. The Vedomosti were first published in 1838 in 42 cities by order of the tsar. By the beginning of the 20th century, more than 80 were being published. Sometimes the titles differed depending on whether they were oblastnye or voiskovye. Some were daily, other weekly, with print runs ranging from several hundred to several thousand copies. Each newspaper consisted of two sections: official and non-official. The official part published governors' orders and instructions, information on new taxes, court cases, etc. The non-official section was much larger, featuring a variety of information on current local events, plants and factories, sales and market prices, agriculture, transportation, the activity of specific societies, hospitals, educational institutions, libraries, etc. Educational articles on history, geography and economics were also included. In addition, everything from weather forecasts to advertisements could be found here including, on occasion, reprinted material such as diaries, archival documents, biographies and folklore. Although the non-official sections of these newspapers were originally apolitical, over the years editors began to introduce more and more political material, so that eventually they carried a great deal of information about political events.

Russian History and Culture

1828 - 1917

Inside the Soviet Union, Russian history prior to 1917 has been subject to censorship and reinterpretation. Were it not for the Helsinki University Library, an official depository of Russian books from 1828 to 1917, much of Russia's ancient and rich past might have been lost to students in the West. Now graduate researchers in Slavic studies, Russian history, politics, literature and culture have access to an outstanding collection of 5,000 scarce titles in the humanities and social sciences from Helsinki University Library's 300,000-volume Slavonic collection. Titles for this collection have been chosen by the staff of the Slavic and East European Department of the University of Illinois Library at Urbana-Champaign. Selections are cross-checked against such sources as Cyrillic Union Catalog, The Slavic Union Catalog and the National Register of Microform Masters to avoid duplicating materials already in North American libraries. The result is a collection of books previously unavailable in the United States and Canada. Russian History and Culture contains books in eight major categories:

- Russian Politics and Government - including a study of peasant self-government, a description of local peasant institutions and an examination of reforms in local and central government
- Russian Industry and Trade - containing valued resources such as A. Petrov's Chronicle of Russian Industry in 1843, P.A. Vikhliaev's Agricultural Economy and Trade Among Peasant Populations (1908) and M.M. Vol'skii's Sketch of the History of the Grain Trade in the Novorossiisk Region from Antiquity to 1852
- Military History - with volumes on the Russo-Japanese war, military life during the Turkish War of 1877-78, as well as regimental histories from the reigns of the czars
- Literature - including collections of lyrics, literary almanacs and a study of the language in major works of Russian literature from the 11th to the 19th century
- Biographies, Memoirs and Histories - such as a biography of Grand Duke Peter Mikhailovich Volkonskii (1776-1852), Anna Ivanovna Volkova's Memoirs, Diaries and Articles (1913) and Nikolai Iraklievich Voronov's Memoirs of the Western Region (1907)
- Education - with works discussing questions of national education among "Old Believers," the Moscow Commercial College, secondary education in Kazin in the 18th century and national education in Voronezh province
- State and Law - covering such topics as the system of land tenure, statutes for various ranks of the municipal police and a history of criminal legislation
- Social Questions - including N.G. Voronov's Fundamentals of Sociology (1912), substantial coverage of the women's movement, Russian Jewry and public health

Yugoslav Statistics

1834 - 1919

Valuable raw materials for research into all aspects of the economic, social and political history of the predecessor territories to Yugoslavia available in a single organized collection for the first time. The socio-economic statistics collected by Balkan governments before 1918 long antedated the first appearance of statistical annuals and covered a wider range. Some of the serials go back to 1850 and before. Yugoslav Statistics brings together on microfiche over 300 annuals, serials, censuses and other publications for Croatia, Serbia, Montenegro and Bosnia published between 1834 and 1919. Materials have been drawn from the holdings of 12 institutions in the former Yugoslavia, Austria, the United States and Britain. Some are reproduced from previously little known sources for the first time.

Government Organization Manuals

1900 - 1980

Organization Manuals are official guides describing the way government and administration is organized in individual countries. Published as serials, they reflect a nation's passage through periods of expansion, consolidation and contraction, making them valuable reference tools not only for academic researchers but also for government agencies, area specialists and international corporations. This microfiche edition reproduces the manuals of 73 countries from original volumes in the Library of Congress, the largest collection of Government Organization Manuals in the world. Some smaller countries issue large manuals at frequent intervals. In these cases, only selected volumes have been reproduced. The countries covered are listed in the Price List. Details of titles available for each country will be supplied on request.

A Selection of Public Records

1606 - 1949

The records of the Public Record Office document the activities of government departments, courts of law and similar official bodies operating in the United Kingdom from the 11th century to the present day. The Public Record Office had pioneered in making this vast amount of original source material available to scholars throughout the world by providing microfilm. To meet an ever-increasing demand with cooperation of the PRO, we instituted a major 35mm microfilm project in 1972. The following have been selected and organized according to the general subjects and geographical areas about which information has been most frequently requested at the PRO, Bibliographical guides accompany some sections.

Bartlett, Josiah. The Papers of Josiah Bartlett

1701 - 1800

A leading patriot during the Revolutionary War and the first governor of New Hampshire, Josiah Bartlett (1729-95) left an indelible mark on New England history. Bartlett was also a militia officer, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and twice a delegate to the Continental Congress. In addition to his political and military exploits, he practiced as a physician in Kingston, New Hampshire, for several years. Many of his personal papers relate to his time in Philadelphia as a Congressional delegate. Included are letters from government officials and citizens of New Hampshire regarding shipbuilding, the raising and outfitting of troops and local matters that required Bartlett's guidance as a national delegate.

Bibliothèque Nationale: Catalogues de la Troisième République

1870 - 1940

The Catalogue de la Troisième République has been created by bringing together records from different sections of the Bibliothèque Nationale's massive Catalogue de l'Histoire de France. In all, 30,000 records have been collected and organized in a single inclusive reference work. Scholars can now research more thoroughly than ever before not only the political history of the period but all aspects of French national life between 4th September 1870 and 10th July 1940. There are records for a wide range of printed sources from the period itself, mostly in the form of documentary series. These include collections of posters; electoral tracts distributed at legislative elections between 1876 and 1914; parliamentary papers produced by the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate; and collections of documents from the main trade unions and political parties. There are also a considerable number of articles and brochures of a polemical nature, covering a wide range of issues, from local and personal disputes to the great national and international controversies of the day. Entries for retrospective works - from scholarly monographs to partisan writing - which have a bearing on the period as a whole or on a particular episode, make up the other major element in the Catalogue.

An index of names provides a valuable additional means of access.

Buchanan, James. The Papers of James Buchanan

1781 - 1893

When James Buchanan was elected President of the United States in 1856, he inherited a nation deeply divided by the fundamental issues of slavery and states' rights. Historians and political scientists have long debated whether or not the Confederate secession could have been avoided if Buchanan had not been a classical political thinker. The James Buchanan Papers offers a comprehensive research collection for the study of this and other issues. Since Buchanan's life spanned the federal era of United States history, from Washington's first term until the Civil War, researchers can also study the entire early history of the U.S. through the perspective of one of its presidents. Buchanan's triumphs as well as his alleged failings can be viewed in these documents. Included in the material are:

- Incoming correspondence
- Outgoing correspondence, speeches, notes and memoranda
- Third-party correspondence and miscellaneous papers
- Drafts and manuscript books by Buchanan and his biographers
- Printed material
- Business papers
- Legal papers and indexes

While slavery raised the bitterest emotions during Buchanan's term as president, he also faced other volatile issues such as the question of a protective tariff, free land in the West and the distribution of federal funds. This important collection offers students of history, political science, political history, diplomacy and international affairs ample opportunity to study in depth both the man's philosophy and the times during which he lived.

Burr, Aaron. The Papers of Aaron Burr

Given the station of his birth, no man seemed a less likely candidate for disgrace than Aaron Burr, Jr. He was the son of a college president and the grandson of a renowned theologian and his birthright seemed secure for a position of intellectual and moral leadership. Students of American history, political science, government and legal and social history can now trace the precipitous path of Burr's career as he climbed to national prominence and then fled the country in exile. The correspondence, books, journals and legal papers included in this collection vividly portray Burr's early years in the military, as a New York lawyer, his major role in the formation of the Jeffersonian party and his subsequent rise to the position of Vice President of the United States. The collection also depicts his fall from power and provides valuable insight into the duel with Alexander Hamilton, which destroyed his promising career. Among the many topics available for intensive research into Burr's life are:

- His participation in an expedition down the Mississippi to stage an assault on Spain's colonies and allegedly on U.S. territories, which led to charges of treason
- His parallel careers as politician and land speculator
- Accounts of his four-year self-imposed exile in Europe after his duel with Hamilton, years during which he vainly fought to liberate Spain's colonies
- Unique correspondence with widows, orphans and spinsters during the last two decades of his life when, after the tragic loss of his family, he exchanged letters with these strangers to create a new "family"

The more than 45,000 pages in this collection also represent a new source for the study of New York state and local history, territorial expansion in the new republic and women's history. Burr's journals for the years 1808-1812 offer a fascinating record of intellectual and social life in Great Britain and Europe during the Napoleonic era. This collection was co-sponsored by the New York Historical Society and the National Historical Publications and Records Commission.

Coxe, Tench. The Tench Coxe Papers

1638 - 1896

Tench Coxe was America's first Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Commissioner of Revenue and Purveyor of Public Supplies. He also was a prolific writer, leaving behind a massive collection of papers relating not only to his involvement with and service to the government of early America, but also to his family's commercial interests, his land dealings, his support of the U.S. Constitution and his views on the nation's fledgling economy. Coxe's early years were characterized by his involvement with the family's import-export firm. But during the American Revolution, his actions, if not his words, indicate that he held royalist sympathies. Coxe developed an interest in the new national government in the 1780s, however and became a fervent supporter of the Constitution, publishing several notable pamphlets in response to its critics. Following the adoption of the Constitution, he became intensely caught up in the life of the new nation and governmental service became his principal passion and employment. Now students of American history, political science and economics can gain valuable insight into not only Coxe's life and contributions, but also into the mainstream of early political thought through his correspondence with people of consequence in public affairs - Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, for example.

Founding Fathers

Collections of personal papers that provide researchers with insight into both the private and public lives of historical figures are always popular because of the balance they provide to other historical accounts. Now, more than 8,000 pages of letters and other documents from the most important figures in early U.S. history are available to students through this microfiche collection. The collection is drawn from materials at the renowned Morristown (New Jersey) National Historical Park and the Dawes Library at Marietta College (Ohio). All signers of the Declaration of Independence are represented, as well as other important figures. Martha Washington, Patrick Henry, John Paul Jones, Dolly Madison, James Madison, Thomas Paine, Alexander Hamilton, Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr are among those whose writings are included. Students and researchers will benefit from such pieces as John Adams' letter to John Taylor explaining his views on the American system of government and our system of checks and balances. Political treatises like this are balanced with rare personal glimpses, such as Benjamin Franklin's letters describing his religious beliefs. Students of Revolutionary War history will find particularly interesting the large sections on George Washington and the United States Army.

The Hickleton Papers*

1800 - 1885

From the Archives of the Earl of Halifax, Garrowby. These consist of the political and official papers of Sir Charles Wood, 1st Viscount Halifax, whose political career was both long and significant. He entered Parliament in 1826 and in 1832 was appointed Private Secretary to the Treasury in the administration of the second Earl Grey, an appointment that enabled him to develop the political acumen which was to become apparent in his later handling of Indian affairs. The political papers illustrate his instinctive understanding of the structure of political power and his acute awareness of political situations both at home and in the rest of the world.

Livingston, Governor William. The Papers of Governor William Livingston

1771 - 1790

The career of William Livingston, New Jersey's first elected governor, is one marked by distinction and strong leadership. Now students and researchers can access the papers of Livingston through this microfilm collection. Livingston had already retired when, in 1774, critical events called him to serve in the First and Second Continental Congress. He resigned from the Congress in June 1776 to assume command of the East Jersey militia. His active military career ended three months later upon his election by the state legislature as New Jersey's first governor. As a wartime leader, he energetically spread anti-British propaganda, guided the state militia, and established the Council of Safety - which was devoted to harrasing British sympathizers. He also founded the New Jersey Gazette in 1777 as a vehicle for his vitriolic hatred of Loyalists. The collection, which spans Livingston's unprecedented 15 terms as state governor, includes:

- Official and family correspondence
- Speeches
- Committee reports
- Military orders
- Legal documents
- Council of Safety testimonies
- Pseudonymous writings and satires

Among Livingston's noteworthy correspondents are John Adams, John Hancock, George Washington and Thomas Wharton, Jr. This collection provides a major resource for any study of the American Revolutionary War, literary and political history of the U.S. and New Jersey state, local and family history.

Massachusetts Historical Society Collections

1419 - 1970

The Massachusetts Historical Society is an independent, not-for-profit research institution incorporated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It was founded in 1791 for the threefold purpose of collecting, preserving and disseminating resources for the study of American history. It was not only the first North American historical society but also the first library of any kind to devote its primary attention to collecting Americana. These collections cannot be matched either in scope or depth by those of any similar institution in North America.

- The Adams Papers, 1639-1889

Two-and-a-half centuries of United States history are covered and brought to life through the papers of the Adams family. From President John Adams (1735-1826) and his famous wife Abigail through the lives of President John Quincy Adams (1767-1848) and U.S. Minister to England Charles Francis Adams (1807-1866), the more than 300,000 manuscript pages in the collection provide one of the most thorough accounts of history as told by one family. The contributions of the many Adams family members in the political, social, and economic spheres of public life are documented. Researchers will also benefit from the innermost thoughts and feelings of family members as they correspond with each other over the decades. Included are diaries, letterbooks, autobiographical writings, legal papers, family letters, plus political essays and speeches. The collection is organized internally to afford scholars convenient access to the papers. Part I contains the diaries of John, John Quincy, and Charles Francis Adams. Part II follows with the letterbooks of these three statesmen. Part III is organized by generation, and thereafter by individual. Part IV contains letters received by the family and other loose papers, arranged chronologically from 1639-1889.

- The Winthrop Sargent Papers, 1771-1948

A Harvard graduate and typical member of a New England upper class family, Winthrop distinguished himself by gaining knowledge of the Northwest Territory as a surveyor. This led to his appointment as the first Secretary of the newly created Northwest Territory Government, and his eventual tenure as Acting Governor of the region. His job was to organize and enforce government and law and order in the frontier territory, and his unbending principles played a major role in achieving these goals. He also served as Governor of the Mississippi Territory, helping to tame and organize that area.

Plumer, William. The Papers of William Plumer

1778 - 1854

This microfilm collection offers insight into the lives of a father and his son - both of whom served America and provided vision and leadership in its early days. The papers of William Plumer and his son William Plumer, Jr., span a century of energetic development in our country. Both men were active in the political arenas of their era and both wrote fluently on virtually every facet of contemporary society. Students of early America's political, social, literary and legal history discover a new perspective on important aspects of history, such as:

- The formative years of the U.S. Congress
- New Hampshire state and local history
- The debate concerning the Missouri Compromise
- America's literary contributions to the world of culture

William Plumer (1759-1850) was an active participant in the governmental process during his lifetime. He was Speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives and President of the State Senate, a U.S. Senator, the Governor of New Hampshire and the first President of the New Hampshire Historical Society. His son, William Plumer, Jr. (1789-1854) carried on this tradition of service as a New Hampshire Legislator and a U.S. Congressman. He also contributed richly to America's literary life as a poet. In addition to a multitude of personal and professional correspondence, this unique collection features the more than 2,000 finished biographies written by the senior Plumer. His subjects included noteworthy people from before his lifetime, his contemporaries and people whose very longevity he considered remarkable. Of special interest are the essays and speeches written by Plumer under the pseudonym "Cincinnatus," as well as copies or drafts of speeches by William Plumer, Jr. dealing with such subjects as slavery. The collection also includes legal papers, documents from William Plumer's tenure as governor and his unpublished histories of the United States. Students and researchers are provided through this collection the opportunity to view American history and politics through the unusual continuum of two distinguished men from the same family.

Political Reports and Dispatches from the Outer Islands of The Netherlands East Indies*

1898 - 1940

These reports and dispatches arrived at the Dutch Ministry of the Colonies in a steady and well-organized flow for over four decades during the early part of this century. They emphasize internal political relations and local events in the relevant provinces and will be an invaluable source of information for South Asian researchers.

Presidential Election Campaign Biographies

1824 - 1976

Presidential Election Campaign Biographies brings together promotional literature from 1824 to 1976, providing students in American history, political science, popular culture and journalism with a fascinating historical record of how presidential candidates have been packaged and promoted to the American electorate for more than 150 years. These biographies describe the candidates' circumstances of birth and family backgrounds, their education and occupations, transforming men into myths and emphasizing the characteristics most appealing to Americans at any given time. In effect, the goal has always been to offer the voters an "ideal citizen" and to sway the majority in that candidate's favor. In addition to biographies of official candidates, this unique collection presents those individuals who were unsuccessful in securing their party's nomination. The titles in this collection were selected by William Miles, history bibliographer at Central Michigan University's Clarke Historical Library, from his renowned bibliography of presidential election campaign biographies entitled The Image Makers.

Presidential Election Campaign Documents

1868 - 1900

Political power was up for grabs in America during the period of Reconstruction following the Civil War. The instability created by this divisive conflict created a unique political atmosphere both for candidates seeking the presidency and for their respective political parties. Covering the nine elections from 1868-1900, this collection contains the campaign books of the two principal parties plus copies of nearly all the pamphlets and speeches published by their national committees. In addition, researchers in American history, political science and rhetoric will value the numerous reports and wealth of biographical information provided on these pivotal election campaigns. Presidential campaigns during this period were often intense and cut-throat. Materials from the 1868 election, for example, include Republican appeals to the "colored voter." A Republican pamphlet attempting to draw the votes of "the laboring men of the South" eloquently warns, "Your blood will be demanded in sacrifice for the interests of a sectional policy whose chief aim has so far been but to degrade you." This collection provides ample research opportunities for students in a variety of disciplines. Political historians will use the collection to trace major political issues of the late 19th century. Ethnohistorians can discover how issues were addressed to various immigrant segments of the population at the time. And political scientists can analyze electoral strategies, examine rare third-party documents and follow the evolution of party politics during this era. The materials in this historical research source come from the collection of presidential campaign pamphlets of the Dartmouth College Library.

Tallmadge, Nathaniel P. Papers of Nathaniel P. Tallmadge

Nathaniel P. Tallmadge was a leading figure in 19th century New York and Wisconsin politics gaining national prominence during the 1836 slavery debates with Calhoun in defense of the freedom to petition Congress. He was appointed Wisconsin's territorial governor in 1844. The Tallmadge Papers reproduced on microfilm contain correspondence, speeches and writings that document fifty turbulent and formative years in the history of the United States.

Tsiang Diaries

1944 - 1965

Dr. Tingfu Fuller Tsiang (1895-1965), a scholar, educator and diplomat, started his political career as the Chinese ambassador to the Soviet Union in 1936. After February 1938 he served as director of the political department of the Executive Yuan. Tsiang was named China's permanent representative to the United Nations in 1947 and was ambassador to the United States from 1961 to 1965. He is perhaps best known for his appointment to the United Nations. While serving in this capacity, Tsiang campaigned for the right of the Chiang Kai'shek government, which governed only Taiwan and other islands off the coast of the mainland, to represent China at the United Nations. Dr. Tsiang wrote in a letter to The New York Times, "The Communist regime is un-Chinese in origin and un-Chinese in character and purpose. Morally, it cannot represent the Chinese people." Although his position became increasingly difficult after the Central People's Government of the People's Republic of China was established in 1949, Tsiang remained a well-respected figure throughout his diplomatic career. In addition to his unflagging support of Nationalist China, Tsiang advocated international recognition and autonomy for the peoples of Indonesia, Palestine, Czechoslovakia, Ceylon and others. He once said that "all people must make up their minds to respect the ideology of others...it is impossible to maintain that the world must accept one system." The collection contains the personal reflections of this political figure for the years encompassing his most active diplomatic work. The diaries are written in English and contain one-page entries for each day. The collection was filmed from volumes housed at Harvard University.

Canadian Parliamentary Committees

1935 – Present

Parliament 17-current

Parliament is making its committees stronger, which means vigorous debate at the committee-stage for bills. Therefore, researchers will need complete information on what was said. These collections include House and Senate Committees as well as House of Commons Legislative Committees. The microfiche are organized in a logical order by parliamentary session and we also provide clear labels for each microfiche to make finding and using them easy for library users.

Subscriptions are available for all or selected committees. You may order the complete set; by House, Joint or Senate Committee; or by selecting committees by subject. Current subscriptions can only be ordered by Subject Groupings of committees and backfiles of the collection can be ordered in series organized by Parliament. Backfiles and Current Committees are also available in Subject Groupings by policy area designed for special libraries. The following is a list of Committees available:

- Social & Cultural Affairs
- Resources, Environment & Sciences
- Finance, External Affairs & Defense
- Justice & Government Business

Departmental Annual Reports

1975 – Present

These are documents, tabled before Parliament, that record agencies' activities. This historical collection of departmental annual reports provides information on activities, statistics and special reports. Only English editions of the reports have been filmed and from 1975, departmental annual reports appear in Microlog and are indexed in the Canadian Research Index. We also film Departmental Reports submitted to legislatures as Budgets and Estimates. Recently, some Federal Departments and Agencies have omitted publishing a separate Annual Report because the information is already included in Departmental Estimates. Our files go back to the 1880s and are as current as the reports covering last year. In many cases, we have the complete files for Federal Departments. The following are the three subsets of departmental annual reports that are available:

- Federal Provincial Reports
- Budgets & Estimates
- Agencies, Commissions, Councils & Institutes

Sessional Papers

Includes papers ordered to be printed and distributed for public use, papers filed with Parliament but not distributed for public use and backfiles. Micromedia ProQuest is the only microfilm source for Unpublished Sessional Papers, which are not readily available in paper. We are the only source for Question Period's written responses, answers to contentious and informational questions asked in the House or Senate and tabled for later response by the Minister.

Canadian Treaties

1928 – Present

Micromedia ProQuest has collected on microfiche all treaties to which Canada has been a signatory power since 1928. Because of the irregular order in which treaties are issued, microfiche is the ideal medium for maintenance of backfile sets. Treaties since 1975 appear on discrete microfiche, so that updates may be interfiled as they appear. Treaties are published only after ratification, which can be some years after the cover date. The date represents the date the treaty was in force in Canada. Indexes are compiled and published several years later, therefore they are number one in each additional set. All treaties are bilingual.

Department of External Affairs, Statements and Speeches

1946 – 1991

Filed from the collection assembled by the Departmental Library, these documents, originally published as press releases, are unavailable as a complete set in any other form. A full index, prepared by the Library, is also available.

Canadian Curriculum Guides

1976 - Present

The Micromedia Proquest Canadian Curriculum Guide microfiche service makes provincial curriculum documents easily available to students, researchers, publishers, educators, and libraries. The collection includes curriculum guides or courses of study, plus selected resource documents, issued by provincial/territorial departments of education. All language editions are included. The annual update, appearing in September of each year, includes new guides issued in the previous year. Backfiles are also available. Each microfiche header displays a unique number, which determines filing order, and may be used for quick location of titles in the paper index. An index is supplied free of charge to subscribers which cumulates curriculum guides from 1990 to date. Also included is a list of contents of the current shipment

HeritageQuest™

Your Leading Resource for Genealogy Data

ProQuest®

The HeritageQuest™ collection includes federal census records, source documents, and indexes. The collection is rich in demographic and genealogical detail, including:

Note: Most data is organized by state and we can customize a package to include relevant data from all of the categories listed below, as available. (Excluding hardbound indexes)

Hardbound Indexes

'In my humble opinion, there is no comparison in the quality of the indices produced [in the genealogy field.] The HeritageQuest™ indices are superb.'

~ Douglas Blondin, genealogical researcher

Indices provide researchers with a starting point to locate ancestors in original records. These indices include data from the U.S. Census from 1790-1910. HeritageQuest™ also offers indices with Ship Passenger Lists, Vital Records, Bounty Land Warrants, Veteran's Census.

Census Records

HeritageQuest™ offers the complete U.S. federal census collection from 1790 through 1930. Census records are organized by state and available on microfilm. The Canadian census is available from various years and provinces from the Quebec, 1666 census onward and census for all provinces and territories are available for the years 1881 and 1891. State census data sets provide additional information from the U.S. federal census and can include county specific details and land lot information (please inquire about availability).

Other County Records

Including county histories, census, school, taxation and vital records.

Military Records

Available pre-Revolutionary War through World War II, with special packages available for Civil War and Revolutionary War research. HeritageQuest™ also offer Pension and Pension Application Files, Compiled Service Records, Registers of Enlistments, Bounty Land Warrant Application Files, Muster Rolls, Payrolls and Payments, Prisoners of War for the United States and Canada, and World War I Draft Records (please inquire about availability).

Ship Passenger Lists

Available from 1820-1954, these manifests are organized by port of entry for American and Canadian port cities (including New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, New Orleans, and Detroit) and include arrival dates and place of origination.

Family Histories & Surname Collections

Available on microfilm and microfiche and indexed by surname.

Vital Records

Records of births, marriages and deaths, incorporating information from Family Bibles.

African American Record

Bank Records, Military Records, Labor Contracts, Vital Records, and records relating to the Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands, such as letters and telegrams, endorsements, issuances, records of abandoned or confiscated lands, personnel records, reports on the condition of freedmen and refugees, murders and outrages. HeritageQuest™ offers material such as the Freedman's Bank Records (index and original records) and Slave Schedules from the 1850 and 1860 US Federal Census, as well as a special African American Research Bundle.

Native American Records

Report on World Affairs*

1919 - 1980
London, England
This is an entirely factual journal, whose main aim is to give an unbiased review of the affairs and policies of the nations of the world. It was founded in 1919 as a Report produced by the British Foreign Office for the Commonwealth (then Empire) Parliamentary Association.
Its objective was to fulfill the C.P.A.'s requirement for a serious and totally objective source of information on current world events. Perhaps the most valuable aspect of this microfilm reprint is that for the first thirty years or so of its existence the Report on Foreign Affairs (as it was then called) was a "restricted publication" with circulation only permitted among members of the C.P.A. and its associates. It is thus a rarely found source of world history, whose importance is enhanced by its impartiality.

England

London Gazette

1665 - 1950

Oxford & London, England

First published in 1665, this is the oldest continuously-published newspaper in the United Kingdom. As the official newspaper of the Crown, it plays a role in Britain comparable to that of other national gazettes throughout the world. Taking its name from the seat of government, it originated as the Oxford Gazette when King Charles II held court in that city. After 23 issues, both court and newspaper moved to London and the publication took its current title. At the outset the London Gazette was more of a national newspaper than an official government publication. By 1801, with the development of a robust private press, it had taken on the role of recording Government news. The London Gazette contains a wide range of official notices, including State, Parliamentary and Ecclesiastical notices; Transport and Planning notices; and Corporate and Personal Insolvency notices. Many Gazette notices are statutory in nature and serve as an essential resource for legal researchers and practitioners.

Sierra Leone

The Sierra Leone Gazette*

1808-1810 & 1817-1827
Freetown, Sierra Leone
Printed in Freetown, 16 numbers appeared in 1808. The following year Governor Thompson renamed it The African Herald. His successor restored the original title but publication ceased shortly after in 1810. In 1817 it was revived by Governor MacCarthy as The Royal Gazette and Sierra Leone Advertiser, part official gazette and part provincial newspaper. Published two or three times a month, it lasted until 1827 when it was discontinued, an economy measure ordered by the Secretary of State.

From legislative decisions to committee resolutions, The Official Journal of the European Union (OJ) lets users study the history and expansion of the EU, as well as access the full record of the EU's dialogue with other world bodies. This daily publication allows you to: Access the official record of EU legislation, Obtain complete coverage of EU development, Find detailed information on individual EU member countries and their role within the EU and Investigate the EU's dialogue with other world bodies. As the authoritative source of EU law, the OJ is the full record of ancillary and regular reports of the EU, with a complete backfile to 1952. The ProQuest microfiche edition is the only source for the complete OJ Legislative (L) Series and Court of Justice (C) Series.

Although the OJ is published in print by the EU, as well as in electronic form in 11 languages, the print editions are limited runs and, particularly for the earlier years, can be difficult or impossible to acquire. Additionally, the electronic runs are available for only a limited time. Subscribers to the OJ microfiche edition automatically receive monthly updates, so users get the exclusive complete archive of EU policy and development. The ProQuest edition, available on compact and long-lasting silver halide microfiche, is published one month after the release of the original documents. The OJ on microfiche contains:

- Legislation (the 'L' series) - regulations, directives, decisions, recommendations and opinions
- Court of Justice (the 'C' series) - summaries of judgments from the Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance;
- Statements of the Committee of the Regions and the Economic and Social Committee, competition notices and much more.
- Debates of the European Parliament - a verbatim report of the Parliament's proceedings, issued in monthly installments

In addition, OJ subscribers get the annual Directory of Community Legislation in Force, as well as monthly and annual chronological indexes. The monthly and annual indexes consist of two volumes: Volume I- Alphabetical Index and Volume II - Methodological Tables. Indexed items in the Alphabetical Index refer to the titles of the documents in the Methodological Tables.

UMI Dissertation Publishing

Soon after its founding in 1938, UMI became the publisher of record for U.S. doctoral dissertations. To this day, ProQuest fills that role for graduate students whose dissertations and masters theses have been accepted by accredited institutions throughout North America.

How UMI's Dissertation Program Works

Dissertations and theses available from ProQuest /UMI are used by researchers in all fields of study. The ProQuest /UMI dissertation product line - which consists of bibliographic data, indexing, access tools and the published documents themselves - is recognized worldwide because of its comprehensive coverage, high-quality information and rigorous editorial control.

The online ProQuest Dissertation & Theses Database (PQDT) catalogs over 2 million doctoral dissertations and master's theses, dating from the first U.S. dissertation in 1861. Thousands more are added yearly. Over one million dissertations and theses are available in full page image in microform and paper, both bound and unbound. Many are also available in digital format, for downloading over the Web. Dissertations can be located and ordered on a standing order basis or via:

- ProQuest Dissertations & Theses, which provides searching capabilities and online access to citations and abstracts for every title in the database. Titles published since 1997 are available in .PDF digital format and have citation and abstract, plus 24 page previews available. Dissertations can be purchased in print, microfiche or .pdf format.
- ProQuest Dissertation Express for both individuals and libraries. If you have a specific title in mind, Dissertation Express will let you look it up by title, author or publication number. Once you find it, you can place your order immediately via our online ordering system. Use this service when you know exactly which dissertation you need to order. Dissertations can be purchased in print, microfiche or .pdf format.
- DATRIX Direct - custom computerized search service (please see the DATRIX form enclosed in this document). This is an individualized search we perform for you based on your specific research topic.
- UMI Digital Archiving and Access Program - Ask your UMI representative about this new access and preservation service for institutions.

Direct to you Successful research depends on your sources. That's why if you're preparing to start a research project, it makes sense to first find out what's been written in your area of interest. You'll not only avoid duplicating someone else's work, you'll benefit from their research. | You could search the titles of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses yourself—if you have the time and patience. Or you can have DATRIX Direct conduct a dissertation search for you that's exhaustive, not exhausting.

Discover sources unique to your topic

DATRIX Direct is an individualized search that gives a one-of-a-kind listing of only those dissertation citations directly relevant to your specific research topic. The result is a computer printout of exactly the bibliographic citations you need. No more and no less. It could be as many as five hundred or as few as none (informing you that your research topic is totally unexplored).

Because it's a computerized search, DATRIX Direct is comprehensive—through UMI's vast computer database of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses dating back to 1861. And with thousands of citations being added to the database every month, DATRIX Direct is more up-to-date than any printed source. ■ Each citation includes a title, author, degree, date, institution, subject category, and order number, as well as where the abstract can be found in UMI's monthly publication Dissertation Abstracts International or the bi monthly Masters Abstracts International.

How to order your search

To organize your search, complete both sides of the DATRIX Direct Search Request form and send it to UMI at the address shown. ■

The results of your DATRIX Direct search will be sent first-class mail and should arrive within two weeks of receipt of your order. For faster service, call us toll free at 800-521-3042; outside the U.S. and Canada, call 734-761-4700, ext. 7044.

SUBJECT CATEGORIES Dissertation Abstracts International is arranged by subject categories. These categories have been selected by the authors to identify their dissertations.

DATRIX DIRECT SEARCH REQUEST

The success of your search depends on how accurately and specifically you describe your research needs. The information you provide below will help us create a search strategy. Please type or clearly print in ink.

RESEARCH TOPIC Write the proposed title of your study or a summary of your research topic _____

DATABASE MATERIAL TO BE SEARCHED (Please check one) Dissertations & master's theses Dissertations only Master's theses only

KEYWORDS UMI's dissertation database is accessed by a search for keywords in the dissertation title. The number of relevant citations retrieved depends largely on your keyword strategy. For best results, follow the procedure below:

1 Write 1 to 3 keywords from your research topic that might appear together in the dissertation titles in our database (e.g., "Nursing Burnout"). A keyword can also be numeric ("1990") or alphanumeric ("B12"). Only dissertation titles containing all the words you list on a single line can be retrieved.

2 To avoid having to list all possible word endings for a keyword, simply write the root word and an asterisk. One or more complete words must follow the root word on the same line (e.g., "Nurs*, Burnout" would search for words such as "nurse, nurses, and nursing" which appear in the same titles as "burnout").

3 Use the other lines for synonyms and alternate words and spellings (e.g., "RN; LPN; BSN").

4 Modify words likely to appear in hundreds of titles with more specific words.

5 If appropriate, use the right-hand column to list keywords that exclude data you don't want. (e.g., "Nurs*, Home*" and "Nurs*, Homes*" would exclude titles relating to nursing homes or home nursing. Note that the computer recognizes no word order.)

SUBJECT CATEGORIES (optional) Each citation title is listed in UMI's dissertation database in a subject category chosen by the author. On the opposite page is a complete listing of subject categories and codes. List the categories (and codes) most relevant to your research topic.

DEGREE DATES (optional) You may narrow the database search to certain years or time periods (e.g., "1990 through 1993"). This is especially recommended for broad categories such as "Education, Administrative", for which nearly 1,200 titles are added each year.

INSTITUTIONS AWARDEING DEGREES (optional) You may restrict the search to dissertations and master's theses prepared for specific institutions (e.g., "New York University and UCLA").
