About This Catalog

The Colonial & Post-Colonial Catalog of ProQuest microform contains 63 research collections and over 150 serials. Inside you will find titles that support programs for all levels and disciplines within both school and non-school educational settings. The catalog also contains information about obtaining Dissertations on Colonial & Post-Colonial studies.

This catalog will be of particular interest to researchers in the fields of Philosophy, Women's Studies, American History, Latin-American Studies, American Studies and African-American Studies.

A very important collection in this catalog is the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Colonial Numbered Series & Research Publications. The Colonial Numbered Series and Research Publications cover more than a quarter century of colonial development, providing documentation on almost every facet of British colonial administration, planning and problem-solving.

This preface provides a glimpse into the contents of the Colonial & Post-Colonial Catalog of ProQuest microform. Feel free to browse through our titles, or if you are looking for a particular research collection, please consult the index in the back. If you have questions regarding any of our titles, please contact your ProQuest representative at umisalesinfo@proquest.com, 800.521.0600 ext. 2793 or 734.761.4700 ext. 2793.

If you would like additional copies of this or any of our ProQuest Microform Catalogs, you may either make photocopies of the catalogs or contact your ProQuest representative to have printed copies mailed directly to you.

The Advantages of Microform

Despite the continually developing array of digital technologies—and sometimes because of it—information professionals at libraries and universities worldwide still rely on microform. They know it is an archival medium that will meet the needs of researchers for years to come. Microform provides many advantages including:

- New Viewer/Scanners - Images can now be easily sent to remote locations using microform viewer/scanners, which link to your computer workstations, letting you view and print articles or digitize and transmit them electronically (within Fair Use guidelines). This approach combines the unparalleled preservation and storage benefits of microform with the speed and ease of electronic access.
- Special Collections - Microform is the answer if you need hard-to-find or specialty resources. Many older newspapers and periodicals are available only in microform, and it gives your users access to complete page images from historical titles—often from the first issue forward.
- Space Savings - Microform lets you store an extensive collection of complete article images in a small amount of space. Microform takes up less than one-tenth the area of bound copies of newspapers and periodicals.
- Ownership - There is no upkeep or access fees. It uses stable, proven technology you already have, with no need for new workstations or continual software upgrades.
- Clarity and Accuracy - Microform is the answer if you need cover-to-cover clarity and accuracy. Full-image articles are essential to getting the full story.
- Complete Collection - Microform usually is the best solution if you need a complete collection fast. Maybe you're seeking accreditation or even rebuilding after a disaster. An extensive, customized collection of retrospective and current microform titles will meet the needs of your researchers quickly and efficiently.
- Support for Specialized Studies - A compact collection in microform will meet specialized research needs and still leave plenty of resources for the rest of your population. Many libraries also use microform as an added point of access for content that is most in demand.
- Durability - archived properly, it can last for generations, and there is no degradation of images.
- ProQuest Quality - ProQuest's microform images are taken directly from the original printed pages, so you always get the clarity of first-generation copies.

ProQuest Microform is the answer because we've been producing it since 1938. We not only exceed industry standards, we set them. Our microform products include thousands of newspapers and periodicals, and hundreds of research collections, many of which are not available from any other source.

American Culture Series I (ACSI)

1493 - 1806

Perfect for the smaller library, this collection of books and pamphlets opens with a Christopher Columbus letter of 1493 and Martin Waldseemuller's Cosmographie introduction. The pages of the past are opened to students of American literature, history, and culture through this documentation of pre-1900 Americana, which also includes:

- Richard Hakluyt's famous Divers Voyages and other narratives of travel and exploration
- Writings by Increase and Cotton Mather
- Sermons and religious treatises
- Descriptions and histories of the early colonies
- Accounts of Indians and Indian captives
- Pamphlets on witchcraft and colonial government

18th century selections offer a literary dimension through the poems of John Adams and letters by Jonathan Dickinson, and post-Revolutionary writers such as David Humphreys, John Hope, and Noah Webster. A political overview is added in various tracts on slavery and unfair taxation. Individual reels may be purchased.

The 250 titles in this collection are indexed by author, title, and subject in American Culture Series, 1493-1875, A Cumulative Guide, edited by Ophelia Lo

American Culture Series II (ACSII)

1493 - 1875

The 5,600 titles in the Series II collection represent what are considered to be fundamental research materials in interdisciplinary American Studies curricula. The titles in American Culture Series II include all those in American Culture Series I. This larger collection also expands the pre-1806 offerings and extends the series through 1875. Selected and compiled in the mid-1950s by the Committee on Microfilm Bibliography of the American Studies Association, the series includes information on American education, religion, pacifism, feminism, the city, the history of science and many other subjects of importance to American historiography. Categorized by discipline for optimum research use, the collection is available in its entirety or in 12 separate units:

- History
- Literature
- Sciences
- Economics
- Philosophy, Psychology and Religion
- Politics and Law
- Military and Naval History and Science
- Art and Architecture
- Anthropology and Sociology

Black Abolitionist Papers

1830 - 1865

Long neglected in studies of the anti-slavery movement that precipitated the Civil War, the important writings, speeches and correspondence of black abolitionists are drawn together in a comprehensive collection for researchers. Now libraries can supplement their African-American studies holdings with primary sources necessary for a complete study of this major historical topic. The collection encompasses approximately 15,000 articles and documents of nearly 300 black abolitionists in the United States, Canada, England, Scotland, Ireland, France and Germany and includes:

- The correspondence of key African-American leaders
- Speeches, sermons and lectures
- Articles, essays, editorials and other major writings from more than 200 African-American abolitionist and reform newspapers
- Receipts, poems and other miscellaneous documents

The Black Abolitionist Papers project was conceived, compiled and edited by George E. Carter, University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse and C. Peter Ripley, Florida State University, who recognized that these reformers were a persuasive force in the 19th century anti-slavery movement who had been virtually ignored. Among research topics to be explored in this collection are:

- Northern/Southern separatism within the church
- Black colonization and emigration
- Black political action
- Church support of black educational institutions
- Black intellectual and social life

This collection constitutes the largest single collection of materials touching antebellum African Americans. A black studies program would not be complete without access to these documents outlining the integral role played by African Americans in the anti-slavery crusade.

The Dougherty Collection of Military Newspapers

Army...Navy...Air Force...Marines... National Guard...Coast Guard...Merchant Marines. Each branch of the U.S. military has a distinct heritage. The histories, traditions and accomplishments of each branch are recorded in vivid detail in military newspapers. These papers were produced to inform, entertain and uphold the morale of service personnel. As one of the largest collections of its kind ever amassed, the Walter S. and Esther Dougherty Collection of Military Newspapers of the United States brings together more than 4,000 issues of military papers. Nearly 2,500 distinct titles are represented, including issues from the Mexican War, the Spanish-American War, World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam conflict and the years between military conflicts. Most titles date from World War II. Due to the location of military personnel during the war, many titles were published in Europe or the Pacific. Others were published in the U.S. and sent to troops abroad. Titles from all military branches are included, as well as some associated titles from defense industries. For ease of use, the titles are arranged alphabetically within the collection. This comprehensive collection will be valued by students of military history, military science and political science.

Draper Manuscripts

The Draper Manuscripts, collected by Lyman C. Draper, contain first hand accounts from men and women involved in the emerging American frontier including Draper's own notes on his many interviews with Western pioneers and their descendants. Easily accessible through calendars and a printed guide, the biographies, oral histories and other documents provide important data on military figures, pioneers, Indian leaders and influential families as well as maps and genealogies useful to local and cultural historians. Among the biographical manuscripts are Daniel Boone's 1774 military account books and his Kentucky land survey notebooks, papers by and about the noted Mohawk chief, Joseph Brant, and the Campaign Leader, Thomas Sumter, together with accounts of frontier life from the diary of Thomas Spottswood Hinde. The regional manuscripts include the Frontier War Papers - original letters and journals kept by participants in the Indian wars in the West from 1754 to 1815 - the Kentucky Papers and the King's Mountain Papers assembled by Draper to mark the centenary of the victory of frontier troops over Loyalist soldiers at King's Mountain, South Carolina in 1780.

The Echols Collection: Selections on the Vietnam War

Each year following monsoon season in Vietnam, a harvest of unexploded ordinance appears in the countryside: M79 grenade rounds, flechette bombs and other lethal remnants of the war years. Even casual exploration can be fatal. Yet year after year, Vietnamese peasants continue to farm their fields in hopes of bringing new life to a war-ravaged land. The historical record of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War can be compared to the ground on which it was fought. In spite of years of study, the topic is still considered explosive. Policies and motives of participants on all sides of the war have been obscured by "revisionist histories" of every political and ideological hue. Facts are contested and subject to change when new information appears. With the introduction of The Echols Collection: Selections on the Vietnam War, ProQuest brings together multiple historical and national perspectives with an eye toward providing better understanding of the Vietnam conflict.

With more than 5,000 volumes of books, monographs, speeches, pamphlets, manuscripts, serials and historical documents, Selections on the Vietnam War provides unique insight to students of 20th century American and Southeast Asian history, international and U.S. law, economics, political science, government, diplomacy, foreign policy and journalism. Selected from the vast holdings of the John M. Echols Collection at Cornell University (the premier North American source of material on Southeast Asia), the contents of this collection provide an incisive look at pre-war and wartime history as well as the long-term effects of the conflict in Southeast Asia and around the world. The collection contains a variety of political and social commentary, including views expressed by anti-war groups, pro-war factions, religious groups and governmental organizations worldwide. Rare U.S. and Vietnamese government reports, publications and research documents are also included. Readily accessible materials have been omitted. Selection criteria for the collection are based on the Vietnam War Bibliography by Christopher L. Sugnet and John T. Hickey. Included are 3,253 items in English and French (the latter focusing on the French colonial period) - propaganda, pamphlets, government documents, literary works, etc., from the 17th century Catholic missionaries to the fall of Saigon in 1975. Contents of the units are roughly as follows:

- Units 1-4: General materials, English language
- Unit 5: The Kahin Collection; U.S. policy papers
- Unit 6: Thailand, English-language materials
- Unit 7: Colonial era, French-language materials
- Units 8-9: General materials, English-language
- Units 10-13: Colonial and post-colonial eras, treaties; French-language materials

Founding Fathers

Collections of personal papers that provide researchers with insight into both the private and public lives of historical figures are always popular because of the balance they provide to other historical accounts. Now, more than 8,000 pages of letters and other documents from the most important figures in early U.S. history are available to students through this microfiche collection. The collection is drawn from materials at the renowned Morristown (New Jersey) National Historical Park and the Dawes Library at Marietta College (Ohio). All signers of the Declaration of Independence are represented, as well as other important figures. Martha Washington, Patrick Henry, John Paul Jones, Dolly Madison, James Madison, Thomas Paine, Alexander Hamilton, Thomas Jefferson, and Aaron Burr are among those whose writings are included. Students and researchers will benefit from such pieces as John Adams' letter to John Taylor explaining his views on the American system of government and our system of checks and balances. Political treatises like this are balanced with rare personal glimpses, such as Benjamin Franklin's letters describing his religious beliefs. Students of Revolutionary War history will find particularly interesting the large sections on George Washington and the United States Army.

Heraldic & Genealogical Manuscripts of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries at Lambeth Palace Library

1501 - 1700

Lambeth Palace Library is the historic library of the archbishops of Canterbury and the principal library and record office for the history of the Church of England. The Library was founded as a public library by Archbishop Bancroft in 1610. The Library focuses on ecclesiastical history, but its rich collections are important for an immense variety of topics, from the history of art and architecture to colonial and Commonwealth history, and for innumerable aspects of English social, political, and economic history. It is also a significant resource for local history and genealogy. This unique collection of 24 manuscripts include armorials of English, Scottish, French, German, Italian, Dutch, Portuguese, and Spanish families, together with pedigrees of many noble European families.

Gates, Horatio. The Horatio Gates Papers

1726 - 1828

Major General Horatio Gates' fame was established on October 17, 1777, at Saratoga when he defeated "Gentleman Johnny" Burgoyne. The victory marked the turning point of the Revolutionary War and secured a place in history for Gates. Congress subsequently appointed Gates president of the Board of War. Centuries later, historians still question whether the victory at Saratoga truly belonged to Gates or to General Philip Schuyler, or even to the impetuous Benedict Arnold. Now, researchers in history, political science, and military history can access the only complete primary resource material for studying Horatio Gates' career and the controversies surrounding him. The collection contains correspondence and military records of the 18th century, documenting life during the French and Indian War, the American Revolution, and the early years of the Republic. By examining personal correspondence, researchers can study Gates' victory at Saratoga and his role in the Conway "Cabal," which plotted to replace George Washington as Commander in Chief. Another issue that can be assessed is Gates' defeat at Camden, South Carolina in 1780. In that battle, Gates was accused of gross tactical errors and possible cowardice. The event caused Gates to lose his "hero" status forever.

Series I: Correspondence, 1726-1828

This series comprises the bulk of the collection and contains correspondence from major political and military personalities including:

- John Adams
- Benedict Arnold
- Benjamin Franklin
- Alexander Hamilton
- Marquis de Lafayette
- Baron von Steuben
- Artemas Ward
- George Washington

Series II: Orderly Books, Returns, Military Lists, 1756-1783

The orderly books, many in Gates's own hand, offer essential information on the day-to-day mechanics of the French and Indian War and the Revolutionary War and include:

- Records of daily troop movements
- Actual orders and descriptions of orders
- Military intelligence reports
- Lists of the sick, wounded, and dead
- Lists of prisoners
- Accounts of military and civilian supplies

Series III: Financial Materials, 1747-1800

This series provides a daily picture of financing from the standpoint of one of the key generals in the field. Includes:

- Bills of order
- Receipts
- Accounts
- Medical and drug notes
- Gates's personal business papers

The core part of this microfilm edition is filmed from holdings of the New York Historical Society. More than 70 other sources were drawn upon, including the Library of Congress, the National Archives, New York Public Library, the American Philosophical Society, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and The British Museum. The collection has been prepared under the direction of James Gregory, former Librarian of the New York Historical Society.

The History of the Vietnam War

'The History of the Vietnam War...is of inestimable value for primary source research for graduate contemporary history, political science, and programs of international study. It also holds much potential for graduate and undergraduate level studies in cultural anthropology... [and] European colonial history.'

~ Microform Review

Not since the Civil War has a conflict so divided the American public. The Vietnam War is the most political, controversial war ever recorded in American military history. Even today, years after the withdrawal of U.S. troops, researchers strive to separate fact from fiction. The History of the Vietnam War provides a comprehensive and systematically organized collection of material on this series of events. All aspects of the war are covered in this collection - from the Viet Cong and the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Southeast Asia to the campuses and political forums in the U.S. Conflicting perceptions about the nature, course, and purpose of the war are represented. The collection spans 21 years and includes 365,000 pages of materials. Contents include: unclassified and declassified U.S. Government documents and reports; captured documents; transcripts of interviews with defectors; prisoner of war interrogation reports; newspaper and periodical clippings from American, Vietnamese, Asian, and European English-language publications; media monitoring documents from the Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) and the Department of Commerce Joint Publications Research Service (JPRS); scholarly monographs and studies; transcripts of speeches and press conferences by leaders on both sides; un-copyrighted books; monographs and similar published source materials; propaganda leaflets and similar materials published by both sides; and a number of unpublished book-length manuscripts chiefly by Vietnamese writers.

- Unit One: Grand Strategy and General Assessment of the War contains contemporary assessments by leadership in Saigon, Hanoi, Washington and other Allied capitals, Peking, Moscow, and Tokyo.
- Unit Two: General History of the Vietnam War chronicles day-to-day military activity during the war.
- Unit Three: Topical History of the Vietnam War
 - Section 1: Allied War Participants
 - Section 2: Anti-War Activity
 - Section 3: Insurgency Warfare
 - Section 4: Legal and Legislative
 - Section 5: Literature of the War
 - Section 6: POW/MIA
 - Section 7: Press
 - Section 8: Public Opinion
 - Section 9: Refugees & Civilian Casualties
 - Section 10: Statistical Data
 - Section 11: Technology
 - Section 12: U.S. Economy & the War
 - Section 13: Veterans
 - Section 14: War Atrocities
 - Section 15: War Participant Interviews
- Unit Four: Political Settlement Efforts includes Legal Considerations, The Ceasefire Period, Post-War, and other sections.
- Unit Five: The National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) includes material on the organization, internal administration, motivational programs, communication matrix, operational programs, and the post-war fate of the NLF.
- Unit Six: Vietnam, During the Vietnam War is divided into two sections. The first includes materials on Vietnam from prehistory through the Geneva Conference. The second consists of materials related to Vietnam during the Vietnam War, including historical, economic, cultural, and educational documents; a chronology; and general materials.
- Unit Seven: North Vietnam, During the War includes press releases and other captured documents that describe life in North Vietnam, including politics, foreign relations, the military, law and order, social movements, media, and health, education, and welfare.
- Unit Eight: North Vietnam, During the War: Agriculture/Cambodia consists primarily of press releases and other captured internal documents concerned with agricultural progress in North Vietnam. A smaller section deals with Cambodia from the 1960s to the end of the 1970s.

Jesuit Relations of New France

1601 - 1800

OmniSys World Literature Collections (OWL)

Reuben Gold Thwaites, for a number of years superintendent of the Wisconsin Historical Society, edited 73 volumes of The Jesuit Relations and Allied Documents: Travels and Explorations of The Jesuit Missionaries in New France in 1610-1791. This set is a prime source for the history of Canada in the 17th and 18th centuries. It is indispensable for general studies of North America in the colonial period and records manners, customs and traditions of the northern tribes of American Indians from a period for which there are few other records.

Manuscript Maps Relating to North America and the West Indies in British Repositories*

1760 - 1783

The years 1760-1783 mark the apogee of British mapping in North America. Maps and plans at various scales were accepted as indispensable adjuncts to both the civil functions of colonial administration and to military needs for fortification, strategic planning and troop movement. Many of the maps surviving these decades were commissioned by the Crown and not only exemplify the development of cartography during the Enlightenment, but also provide a record, sometimes unique, of the events and places to which they relate.

Morristown Manuscript Collection

Over the years, scores of scholars and researchers have visited Morristown National Historical Park in New Jersey specifically to gain access to the more than 60,000 pages of important manuscripts contained in its collection. Now, this historical resource is available to students of American history, Americana, genealogy, and Revolutionary War history through this microfilm collection. Though the emphasis is on the Revolutionary War period and men such as Franklin, Jefferson, Adams, Hamilton, Madison, and Washington, there is substantial material on 19th century figures like Martin Van Buren, Daniel Webster, and Robert E. Lee. Also featured are many items on the French and Indian War, the War of 1812, and the Civil War Period. Materials on and writings by such literary notables as Samuel Clemens, James Fenimore Cooper, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Washington Irving are also represented. The collection is divided into two parts - The Lloyd W. Smith Collection and The Park Collection.

The Lloyd W. Smith Collection had its origin in banker, philanthropist, and collector Smith's deep interest in compiling and preserving Washingtonia and materials related to genealogies and local histories in his native New Jersey. Over the years, his interest became a preoccupation, and he often purchased large-scale lots of manuscript materials to acquire a few desired items. Smith's will dictated that the Morristown National Historical Park should be the final recipient of his valuable holdings and a library was constructed to house the collection. The Park Collection consists of materials acquired by the Washington Association of New Jersey, which was formed in 1874 to save and perpetuate the Ford Mansion, George Washington's headquarters in 1779 and 1780. In addition to preserving his home as a national shrine, the Association made a concerted effort to collect Washingtonia and other equally valuable documents and artifacts from America's past. When Morristown National Historical Park was created in 1933, the National Park Service purchased these manuscripts, which became the nucleus of the collection. From politics to fine arts, this collection has something for every researcher, and it is one of the most significant collections of materials of this type in the United States.

Occasional Papers from St. Augustine's College

1853 - 1935

Saint Augustine's was originally founded as an abbey and endowed by King Ethelbert in A.D. 605. Suppressed in 1538, it was restored 310 years later as an Anglican Mission College, under Royal Charter, in 1848. The Missionary College of St. Augustine was established to relieve the shortage of ministers qualified to serve the British Empire. The Occasional Papers, the first of which was published on May 31, 1853, had their origin in the letters received from various quarters and read at Sunday evening gatherings at the College. These letters from former students give a wide range of contemporary views and opinions on Christian mission fields. Some detail pioneering labors and successes; others reflect first impressions of the societies, terrain, and peoples they met; most supply a broad range of local, social, geographical, anthropological, and missiological information. The letters originate from around the world, some written aboard ship, and others from locations identified only by their navigational coordinates.

The major requirement for admission to the College was communion with the Church of England and "satisfactory certificates of baptism, and of religious and moral character." Because of this, the missionaries themselves came from diverse nationalities and backgrounds, including one Eskimo named Kallihirua. These letters reflect the attitudes of participants in an important period of expanding Church of England missionary activity. They record early contacts with indigenous peoples and reveal the painful efforts of colonial pioneers to adapt English social and religious practices to very un-English environments. Included are subjects of anthropological interest such as the "Head Feast" of the Dayaks in Sarawak and the "Feather Cloak" from Hawaii; local cures such as "Native medicines in the Cape"; news from the mission field in China and Zululand; material on the Boer war and the siege of Standerton, Transvaal; along with many other interesting items. These Occasional Papers provide an important source for missiologists and anthropologists, and more widely for their portrayal of British colonial and post-colonial history at a local level.

Pamphlets in American History

Beginning with Tom Paine's Common Sense, which altered the course of early U.S. history; pamphlets have played a crucial role in American history. This unique microfiche collection brings to your library these historic documents of public opinion, which are generally unavailable as research sources. There are more than 15,000 titles in this collection, drawn from all periods of United States history. Pamphlets in American History also provides the cataloging necessary to integrate pamphlet literature into the mainstream of collection development activities. This collection has been carefully designed to meet the needs of historians and librarians in the areas of bibliographic control and access. Each of the five groups within the collection is accompanied by its own guide and each guide includes bibliographic citations, author title and subject indexes.

Pamphlets in American History is organized within each group in subject-specific segments. In this way, the collection can be tailored to meet a library's collecting policies or departmental teaching strengths. The historical information contained in the pamphlets is as rich and varied as the authors. Included are biographies, campaign literature, speeches, legal decisions, trade union leaflets, personal narratives and more. The American History pamphlets collection at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin has been a major resource for this undertaking. The collection also draws upon the pamphlet resources of many other general and special collections, including: the Syracuse University Libraries; The Tamiment Library of New York University; The New-York Historical Society; The Kenneth Spencer Research Library of the University of Kansas; and the Walter Clinton Jackson Library at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Penn, William. The William Penn Papers

While best known as the founder of Pennsylvania, this remarkable man also made his mark as a Quaker leader and social philosopher during his lifetime. A friend of England's kings, yet a firm believer in religious and political freedom in America, his often paradoxical life can now be viewed through the papers in this important historical collection. Libraries and institutions supporting programs in Colonial American history, European history, religious studies, and Pennsylvania state and local history will be able to offer their students access to valuable resource materials for research. The approximately 3,000 documents are arranged chronologically, and include:

- Correspondence to and from Penn
- Theological papers
- Patents
- Commissions and constitutions
- Account books
- Land records
- Diaries

Penn exchanged letters with many influential people, such as Queen Anne, Cotton Mather, and Peter the Great, and the correspondence in the collection includes these important letters. The collection is also of particular value for exploring Penn's often-complex finances. His business and financial papers offer new insights into the problems facing a British landowner who was at the same time a colonial proprietor. Students of political science and religion will discover a wealth of material pertaining to Penn's political and religious beliefs, and can relate these to the developing trends in Colonial America. Other topics that can now be examined include:

- English society's persecution of Penn and other Quaker leaders
- The founding of Pennsylvania in 1681
- Penn's friendship with King James II
- His defense of colonial autonomy
- His arrest for making false claims of debt and his attempt to sell Pennsylvania

The collection was filmed by the Historical Society of Pennsylvania from documents assembled from more than 60 institutions and individuals.

Quaker Official Correspondence: Home and Abroad

1681 - 1881

The Yearly Meeting is the autonomous decision making body of the Quakers. The London Yearly Meeting has been held regularly from 1672 until the present; Quakers in other countries have their own autonomous Yearly Meetings. This collection contains the official correspondence sent and received by the London Yearly Meeting, along with casual correspondence to and from other Quaker groups. The collection is divided as follows:

- Part 1, General Epistles 1681-1857: Contains letters of general advice to Friends meetings. The epistles were sent out uniformly to all Friends groups and circulated in printed form. The two volumes published in 1858 form the most complete and convenient edition of these epistles, along with a historical introduction and an index.
- Part 2, Epistles sent 1683-1872: Contains specific advice to Friends in America, the West Indies, and Europe. Early volumes include a few epistles to and from meetings of Friends in England.
- Part 3, Epistles received 1683-1879: Forms the other half of the correspondence between the London Yearly Meeting and other Quaker Yearly Meetings and groups.
- Part 4, Letters to and from Philadelphia 1757-1857: Consists of copies of the official correspondence between the executive committees in London and Philadelphia. These committees, known as Meeting for Sufferings, were responsible for business between the annual meetings. These letters touch on slavery, the colonial wars, and the Revolutionary war, as well as internal Quaker matters.
- Part 5, Casual Correspondence 1785-1881: Contains copies of letters and epistles mainly to and from overseas meetings and Quaker groups. They come from Denmark, Norway, France, Germany, Russia, America, India, and Australia. Issues covered include slavery and African emigration, conscientious objection to military service, and the emancipation of serfs in Russia.

Salem Witchcraft

1648 - 1930

This unique microfilm collection brings together the written histories and interpretations of witchcraft occurrences in New England from 1648 through the early 20th century. The subject of witchcraft will be forever tied to New England in American minds. Researchers in every generation since have been fascinated by the old trial records and attempts at explaining the hysteria that gripped New England's residents during the late 1600s. The collection touches on witchcraft incidents throughout New England and North America during colonial times. However, the majority of materials surround the most famous and well-documented witch-hunt in history--that of Salem Village in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1692. This collection brings together over 60 works representing some 7,000 pages of information gleaned from the Salem Village Witchcraft Collection maintained by the Danvers (Massachusetts) Archival Center. The microfilm edition provides a resource by which students and researchers can understand the events of the witchcraft outbreak and how these events have been interpreted by various writers and scholars from the time of the trials up to the 20th century. Included are:

- Early publications by contemporaries of the events in Salem, such as John Hale's 1702 work A Modest Enquiry into the Nature of Witchcraft
- Imprints directly concerning the trials, such as Thomas Hutchinson's 1767 History of the Province of Massachusetts Bay and Peleg Chandler's 1841 American Criminal Trials
- Full-length histories of the New England witchcraft outbreak including Charles Upham's 1831 Lectures on Witchcraft and his well-known 1867 two-volume work, Salem Witchcraft
- Sections from often-overlooked local publications and histories, such as History of the Town of Danvers (1848), by John W. Hanson
- Legal, moral, and psychological interpretations about the witchcraft hysteria outbreak
- Bibliographical materials on the period, including Justin Winsor's The Literature of Witchcraft in New England

The material in this collection was carefully selected by Richard B. Trask, curator at the Danvers Archival Center. The printed index accompanying the collection provides easy access to the film through a listing of reel and item numbers.

The Stevens Family Papers

1664 - 1959

In any list of families that have contributed significantly to America's growth, the Stevenses of New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania rank at the top. For almost three centuries, dating back to colonial days, this family has distinguished itself as one of America's most inventive families. Individual family members have actively contributed to military, political, economic, and social life in the United States. This microfilm collection is truly unique in that it presents in one primary source an unbroken record of documents that spans the entire history of our country. Students and researchers in American history and culture will find a wealth of material for both general and specific studies into America's past. Included in the collection are more than 40,000 pages of manuscripts, letters, notes, drafts, bills, deeds, broadsides, copies of official documents, maps, diagrams, photographs, and genealogical notes on other prominent families.

The Stevens family distinguished itself through the many inventions its members produced, as well as through the founding of the world-famous Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, New Jersey. Most notable of these technological advances were the steamboat (before Fulton), the double-ended steam ferryboat, the first American ironclad warship, and the railroad tie, spike, and rail, still used as the universal railroad bed today. These papers are rich in detail about the family's inventions from concept to completion and provide valuable insight into the rapid development of science and technology in America. Also featured in this collection are the papers of the Hoboken Land and Improvement Company, a family corporation in New Jersey that was an integral part of Stevens family business and a repository of important details on business dealings throughout the centuries. As a personal record of six generations of Americans, the Stevens Papers provide valuable insights into American life and history since pre-Revolutionary days. They reflect the interests, activities, attitudes, struggles, and contributions of men and women who were part of America's growth and development. The collection was filmed from the New Jersey Historical Society in Newark, New Jersey.

Thompson, Augustus Charles. The Papers of Augustus Charles Thompson

1812 - 1901

19th century Christian missionaries brought not just religion to their flocks in Asia, Africa, and the Middle East, but also Western culture and its often conflicting views: assumptions (sometimes demeaning) about indigenous populations and their cultures, juxtaposed uneasily with Western ideals of equality, fraternity, and justice. The papers of Congregational minister Augustus Charles Thompson (1812-1901) reflect his lifelong involvement in the foreign mission movement. The 10,000 volumes of his personal collection, now housed at Hartford Seminary, include his vast library of missionological texts and correspondence. Born in Goshen, Connecticut, Thompson graduated from the Theological Institute of Connecticut (later renamed Hartford Seminary) and served as pastor of the Eliot Church in Roxbury, Massachusetts, for virtually his entire clerical career. He wrote and compiled a number of books, the most famous of them his Moravian Missions (New York, Charles Scribner's Sons, 1890), a thorough review of the German sect and its pioneering and widespread missionary efforts. Students of religion and history will find treasures such as these in the collection:

- The correspondence of Eleazar Lord, including letters from John Jay, Jonathan Edwards, and Caleb Strong
- Thompson's correspondence with many important churchmen of his day, including Rufus Anderson, Edmund de Schweinitz, Gustave Warneck, and Jens Vahl
- Holographic versions of 18th century sermons by preachers Timothy Edwards, Asahel Hooker, Joseph Lyman, and Gideon Hawley
- Materials related to Thompson's service on the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, including letters describing his visits to India in the 1850s and the London conferences of 1878 and 1888

The Thompson Papers will particularly appeal to researchers in:

- Religion, especially missionology and 19th century conservative Protestantism

This primary source material - especially the correspondence - reflects both Western cultural attitudes and everyday details of time and place, e.g.:

- A description of the devotional habits of black South African women converted by missionaries
- Thompson's adolescent son's account of a Fourth of July celebration in Connecticut

A guide, included at the beginning of the first reel, lists items as they appear on the film, followed by an index of correspondents by name; A paper copy of the guide is distributed with the collection

African Military Accounts: War Office Route Books, Military Reports and Information Précis for British Africa*

1869 - 1933

With the Scramble for Africa and the subsequent 'pacification' of British territories, it was essential for the War Office to amass accurate information of possible strategic importance regarding the military and economic potential of indigenous populations, their histories and local topography and to organize this material in a form that would be readily available in the event of an emergency. Consequently, Colonial Office correspondence and other diverse sources, as well as military reports, were gleaned for local details which were then correlated to form comprehensive mosaics. In order to disseminate this intelligence, the corpus of information on individual territories was periodically printed for wider official use. Thus, for example, the Route Books and Military Reports provided comprehensive accounts of the country traversed, the location, size and condition of each village along the route, e.g. the number of huts, availability of water and provisions, populations, population estimates, etc., together with accompanying maps.

As for the Précis, which frequently run to several hundred pages, they most clearly resemble in scope and format the better known British Naval Intelligence Division, Geographical Handbook Series (Restricted) relating to foreign nations and territories which were produced during the Second World War. The Précis contain details on the geography, climate, harbours and communications, forts and docks, trade, bibliography and strategy. Compiled at the beginning of the colonial era, these long forgotten sources provide a basis for an assessment of subsequent changes with African societies and are invaluable for historical economic and political research.

Government Publications Relating to Basutoland*

1868 - 1966

This collection includes a comprehensive series of Government documents on Basutoland, the colonial name for Lesotho. It comprises the Annual Reports, Gazettes, Proclamations and Notices, Laws of Basutoland, Law Reports, reports on Customary law (including the Laws of Leretholi), the Proceedings of the National Council/Legislative Council, Census reports, financial reports and numerous miscellaneous reports.

This is a unique collection gathered from a wide variety of different sources covering the entire colonial period from 1868, when the territory became a British Protectorate, until the formation of the independent state of Lesotho in 1966. The collection includes documents for the period of direct administrative rule by the Cape Colony (1871-1884). Also included are documents from the pre-colonial period from the consolidated Basutoland Records compiled by the Secretary of Native Affairs of the Cape Colony in 1883.

Parral Papers

This unique microfilm collection represents perhaps the most definitive historical record of the Southwestern United States and Mexico. Spanning the years 1631-1821, El Archivo de Hildalgo del Parral is a collection of official records, directives, treaties, court transcripts, wills, letters and other documents relating to the Spanish Colonial Era in "Nueva Vizcaya" - the region now including much of the southwestern United States and much of Mexico. Over 360,000 manuscript pages, written in Spanish, provide primary reference on the administration of government, Indian uprisings, slavery, public entertainment, military organization, silver mining, official residences, crime and punishment and civil law. Since the history of the Southwest is often clouded by fiction, the Parral Papers benefit serious researchers attempting to uncover accurate historical data. Included are references to Father Eusebio Koni, the accusation of Juan Mange by the Jesuits, a report on the assassination of the governor of New Mexico in 1644, plus an account of the 1720 peace treaties with the Apaches and the Texans.

1630 - 1641

The Providence Island Company was founded in 1630 by a group of Puritan grandees in an attempt to confront the national enemy, Spain and begin the building of a foundation for English economic independence. Surviving papers include the records of company meetings, official and unofficial letters and reports and the diary of the last governor, Captain Nathaniel Butler. The colony failed, "extinguished" by the Spanish in 1641, but it nonetheless strengthened a strong English presence in the West Indies.

Documentation Register to Colonial Subjects*

1819 - 1933

Originally compiled for the internal use of the civil servants of the Ministry of the Colonies of the Netherlands, this register may be compared to a modern documentation journal. It provides access to everything from the secret archives of the Ministry, to selected Mail Reports, Consular Correspondence, selected statistics from the Statistical Archives, articles in scholarly journals on colonial subjects and learned books and conference proceedings in Dutch, English, French and German.

1583 - 1963

At the end of the 16th century, Dutch seafarers and merchants burst onto the world stage with commercial and military operations that took them to the far corners of the globe. Within a relatively short time, the tiny country on the North Sea had acquired a far-flung "seaborne empire" extending from the coasts of Western and South Africa to the Persian Gulf, South Asia and the islands of the Indonesian archipelago. The founding of the United Dutch East India Company (VOC) in 1602 was pivotal to this effort. From the beginning, the VOC realized the importance of accurate maps and plans of the areas under their control and the sea and coastal routes that gave access to these territories.

India Office Records: Home Miscellaneous Series

1600 - 1900

The process of international colonization and its effects - even centuries later - on the countries and peoples governed is one that is still debated in academic and public circles. And the British colonial model is the one most frequently used as a basis for these analyses. Researchers in Asian and Indian studies, British colonial history, political science, and diplomatic history find in this collection a wealth of resource materials to support studies of British business and military activities in India and Burma from 1600 through 1900. Selected from the India Office Records Library, the documents highlight the early trade of the famous East India Company, the role of the company in British empire-building, the Indian mutiny of 1858, and the subsequent period of crown sovereignty over Indian territory. India Office Records also contains historical information about the men who shaped the British Empire in Asia, including:

- Robert Clive, who became governor of Bengal in 1765 after securing the Bengal territory from the French and subjugating the native rulers
- Warren Hastings, who ruled as governor general of Bengal from 1772-1785, and who preserved the Indian empire despite threats by Marathas and the rival French forces
- Captain Henry Gurney, whose mission to Thailand opened Bangkok to Western traders

The collection features detailed and revealing documents that record the economic and political processes of ruling an empire halfway around the world. Included are diaries kept during the Indian mutiny, records of sales and delivery of goods in London, registers of exports, the correspondence of the British Administration in the Punjab, and rich accounts of British military campaigns and trading expeditions. Libraries will find their students and researchers using this collection of materials extensively as it not only illuminates the British Empire in Asia, but also provides insight into Indian culture and history during this period.

Mail Reports (Mailrapporten) from the Netherlands East Indies*

1869 - 1940

With the opening of the Suez Canal, regular and reliable postal service between the East Indies and The Netherlands was available for the first time. These mail reports permit the study of colonial events in their continuity, unlike the Memories van Overgave (see below) which were snapshots of the situation at a particular point in time.

Memoranda of Conveyance (Memories van Overgave) of Officials of the Dutch East Indies*

1849 - 1962

Starting in 1849, the government of The Netherlands ordered all of their civil servants leaving office in the East Indies Colony to write a memorandum of conveyance for their successors, containing a careful review of political developments in the district concerned and also giving background details on places, persons and issues important for the successor to know about. This has served as an important reference source for historians and other students of Indonesia in the colonial period. These records constitute this collection.

Resolutions of the Heren Zeventien of the Dutch East India Company*

1601 - 1796

The resolutions of the Seventeen Gentlemen, the highest governing body of the Dutch East India Company (VOC), form one of the most important sources for knowledge about the Company as an international business. The Heren Zeventien normally sat twice each year, during the periods in which ships arrived from or departed to Asia. Because the Heren Zeventien were the Company's highest governing body, their resolutions are in many cases a good starting point for research into the history of colonial/trade relations between the Dutch Republic and the area around the Indian Ocean, including such countries as Indonesia, India, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Burma, Thailand, Malaysia, Cambodia, Vietnam, Taiwan, China and Japan.

Sources for the Culture and Ethnology of Netherlands New Guinea (Irian Jaya) in the Colonial Period: The Archive of the Office of Population Affairs, Hollandia*

1951 - 1962

The Kantoor voor bevolkingszaken (Office of Population Affairs) was set up by the Dutch authorities in Hollandia (now Jayapura) in 1951 to study the ethnological, socio-economic and linguistic situation of the indigenous population of Netherlands New Guinea. Most of the material is in Dutch, but there are also items in Indonesian and English. The collection is organized geographically by district.

Sources for the Study of Colonial Indonesia and Dutch Colonial Policy: From VOC to Colonial State*

c.1700 - 1850

By the end of the 17th century, the Dutch had been involved in Indonesia for nearly 200 years and yet their presence there remained limited geographically and precarious politically. During the following century, however, they established the basis of a colonial state and initiated the expansion that brought almost the entire archipelago under their control by the first decade of the 20th century. The archives of four prominent officials active during this period of expansion constitute this collection.

War and Decolonization in Indonesia*

1940 - 1950

At the end of WWII the independent Republic of Indonesia was proclaimed by Sukarno and Hatta, but the Dutch government - having held the colony for some 350 years - was unwilling to grant Indonesia independence. Thus began over four years of unrest and civil war, increasing intervention by the international community and finally the transfer of sovereignty to the Republic in 1949. Now many of the archives of leading figures and bodies on the Dutch side are being opened and this series makes such papers available on microfiche.

British Museum (Natural History) Collections of Natural History Specimens and Drawings from the Endeavour Voyage of Captain Cook

1768 - 1771

These collections of natural history specimens were made by Sir Joseph Banks and Daniel Solander, the naturalists on Captain James Cook's first voyage round the world. Banks employed the artist Sydney Parkinson to make detailed watercolor drawings of the animals and plants collected. Specimens and drawings from Australia, Brazil, Java, Madeira, New Zealand, Society Islands and Tierra del Fuego are included in this unusual microfiche collection which contains around 1,000 botanical specimens, over 300 zoological drawings, both watercolor and pencil and over 1,500 botanical drawings and related engravings. The catalogue is available in 3 separate parts as follows:

- Part I Botany: Australia
- Part II Botany: Brazil, Java, Madeira, New Zealand, Society Islands and Tierra del Fuego
- Part III Zoology

The Colonial Secretary's Papers*

1788 - 1825

The Colonial Secretary of New South Wales was the main medium of communication between the Governor and the people and vice versa. These records therefore reflect all aspects of Colonial life in New South Wales. New South Wales was the founding colony of Australia and covered the whole of the eastern half of the Australian continent and Tasmania. That makes this collection of records an unparalleled source for Australian history. These Papers cover administration by the civil and military authorities, the granting and settlement of land, the operation of the convict system, the exploration of the interior and the coast, interaction with the Aboriginal population and the commercial and maritime developments of the Colony. The many petitions and memorials from settlers, emancipists and convicts provide a vivid picture of the life of the ordinary people in the Colony, as well as the more prominent historical figures. These papers, which constitute the largest and most comprehensive collection of public records relating to the early years of European settlement in Australia, were published as part of the New South Wales State Government's Departmental Programme for Australia's Bicentenary.

New South Wales Genealogical Research Kit

1788 - 1900

The Genealogical Research Kit consists of microform copies of the major series of New South Wales Records suitable for genealogical research. The Kit is based upon 35mm microfilm, supplemented wherever practicable by microfiche. It has as its foundation the records which document the arrival of Europeans in New South Wales, Australia from 1788 to 1900, that is, the records recording the arrival of convicts, assisted immigrants and unassisted persons. To these are added records of births, deaths and marriages; of naturalizations; of the employment of public servants; of land grants; publican's licenses, depasturing licenses, electoral rolls; and a wealth of other material useful to family historians. In addition, many of these records have been indexed, so the Kit includes some volumes of printed indexes published by the Archives Authority and some references to indexes produced by outside organisations. Although specifically directed at genealogists, the Kit is of value to historians and researchers generally. The Kit has been published in four stages. Although each stage is useful in itself, the four stages do complement each other and together form an impressive array of research material.

HeritageQuestTM

Your Leading Resource for Genealogy Data

The HeritageQuest™ collection includes federal census records, source documents, and indexes. The collection is rich in demographic and genealogical detail, including:

Note: Most data is organized by state and we can customize a package to include relevant data from all of the categories listed below, as available. (Excluding hardbound indexes)

Hardbound Indexes

'In my humble opinion, there is no comparison in the quality of the indices produced [in the genealogy field.] The HeritageQuest™ indices are superb.'

~ Douglas Blondin, genealogical researcher

Indices provide researchers with a starting point to locate ancestors in original records. These indices include data from the U.S. Census from 1790-1910. HeritageQuest™ also offers indices with Ship Passenger Lists, Vital Records, Bounty Land Warrants.

Census Records

HeritageQuest™ offers the complete U.S. federal census collection from 1790 through 1930. Census records are organized by state and available on microfilm. The Canadian census is available from various years and provinces from the Quebec, 1666 census onward and census for all provinces and territories are available for the years 1881 and 1891. State census data sets provide additional information from the U.S. federal census and can include county specific details and land lot information (please inquire about availability).

Other County Records

Including county histories, census, school, taxation and vital records.

Military Records

Available pre-Revolutionary War through World War II, with special packages available for Civil War and Revolutionary War research. HeritageQuest™ also offer Pension and Pension Application Files, Compiled Service Records, Registers of Enlistments, Bounty Land Warrant Application Files, Muster Rolls, Payrolls and Payments, Prisoners of War for the United States and Canada, and World War I Draft Records (please inquire about availability).

Ship Passenger Lists

Available from 1820-1954, these manifests are organized by port of entry for American and Canadian port cities (including New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, New Orleans, and Detroit) and include arrival dates and place of origination.

Family Histories & Surname Collections

Available on microfilm and microfiche and indexed by surname.

Vital Records

Oxford & London, England

First published in 1665, this is the oldest continuously-published newspaper in the United Kingdom. As the official newspaper of the Crown, it plays a role in Britain comparable to that of other national gazettes throughout the world. Taking its name from the seat of government, it originated as the Oxford Gazette when King Charles II held court in that city. After 23 issues, both court and newspaper moved to London and the publication took its current title. By 1801, with the development of a robust private press, it had taken on the role of recording Government news. The London Gazette contains a wide range of official notices, including State, Parliamentary and Ecclesiastical notices; Transport and Planning notices; and Corporate and Personal Insolvency notices. Many Gazette notices are statutory in nature and serve as an essential resource for legal researchers and practitioners.

Montego Bay, Jamaica

Printed by James Farrin at Montego Bay, Jamaica, its main function was to relate the affairs of the Island and also happenings of interest in America which were reported on a state by state basis. A large proportion of the Chronicle consists of advertisements, which form a unique and interesting source for tracing the trade patterns, land holdings and slave conditions in 18th century Jamaica.

Japan

During the Meiji Restoration, many people in Japan felt that the rapid pace of change was endangering traditional Japanese values. This was particularly true in the art world. The Nihon Bijutsu Kyokai was founded to stimulate and protect various forms of traditional art including painting, sculpture, architecture and crafts. Included in the organization's journal were regular bulletins, reports of exhibitions, reviews, research papers, lectures and other features.

Freetown, Sierra Leone
Printed in Freetown, 16 numbers appeared in 1808. The following year Governor Thompson renamed it The African Herald. His successor restored the original title but publication ceased shortly after in 1810. In 1817 it was revived by Governor MacCarthy as The Royal Gazette and Sierra Leone Advertiser, part official gazette and part provincial newspaper. Published two or three times a month, it lasted until 1827 when it was discontinued, an economy measure ordered by the Secretary of State.

UMI Dissertation Publishing

Soon after its founding in 1938, ProQuest became the publisher of record for U.S. doctoral dissertations. To this day, ProQuest fills that role for graduate students whose dissertations and masters theses have been accepted by accredited institutions throughout North America.

How UMI's Dissertation Program Works

Dissertations and theses available from ProQuest /UMI are used by researchers in all fields of study. The ProQuest /UMI dissertation product line - which consists of bibliographic data, indexing, access tools and the published documents themselves - is recognized worldwide because of its comprehensive coverage, high-quality information and rigorous editorial control.

The online ProQuest Dissertation & Theses Database (PQDT) catalogs over 2 million doctoral dissertations and master's theses, dating from the first U.S. dissertation in 1861. Thousands more are added yearly. Over one million dissertations and theses are available in full page image in microform and paper, both bound and unbound. Many are also available in digital format, for downloading over the Web. Dissertations can be located and ordered on a standing order basis or via:

- ProQuest Dissertations & Theses, which provides searching capabilities and online access to citations and abstracts for every title in the database. Titles published since 1997 are available in .PDF digital format and have citation and abstract, plus 24 page previews available. Dissertations can be purchased in print, microfiche or .pdf format.
- ProQuest Dissertation Express for both individuals and libraries. If you have a specific title in mind, Dissertation Express will let you look it up by title, author or publication number. Once you find it, you can place your order immediately via our online ordering system. Use this service when you know exactly which dissertation you need to order. Dissertations can be purchased in print, microfiche or .pdf format.
- DATRIX Direct - custom computerized search service (please see the DATRIX form enclosed in this document). This is an individualized search we perform for you based on your specific research topic.
- UMI Digital Archiving and Access Program - Ask your ProQuest representative about this new access and preservation service for institutions.

DATRIX DIRECT

Direct to you Successful research depends on your sources. That's why if you're preparing to start a research project, it makes sense to first find out what's been written in your area of interest. You'll not only avoid duplicating someone else's work, you'll benefit from their research. | You could search the titles of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses yourself—if you have the time and patience. Or you can have DATRIX Direct conduct a dissertation search for you that's exhaustive, not exhausting.

Discover sources unique to your topic

DATRIX Direct is an individualized search that gives a one-of-a-kind listing of only those dissertation citations directly relevant to your specific research topic. The result is a computer printout of exactly the bibliographic citations you need. No more and no less. It could be as many as five hundred or as few as none (informing you that your research topic is totally unexplored).

Because it's a computerized search, DATRIX Direct is comprehensive—through UMI's vast computer database of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses dating back to 1861. And with thousands of citations being added to the database every month, DATRIX Direct is more up-to-date than any printed source. ■ Each citation includes a title, author, degree, date, institution, subject category, and order number, as well as where the abstract can be found in UMI's monthly publication Dissertation Abstracts International or the bi monthly Masters Abstracts International.

How to order your search To organize your search, complete both sides of the DATRIX Direct Search Request form and send it to UMI at the address shown. ■

The results of your DATRIX Direct search will be sent first-class mail and should arrive within two weeks of receipt of your order. For faster service, call us toll free at 800-521-3042; outside the U.S. and Canada, call 734-761-4700, ext. 7044.

DATRIX DIRECT SEARCH REQUEST

The success of your search depends on how accurately and specifically you describe your research needs. The information you provide below will help us create a search strategy. Please type or clearly print in ink.

RESEARCH TOPIC Write the proposed title of your study or a summary of your research topic _____

DATABASE MATERIAL TO BE SEARCHED (Please check one.) Dissertations & master's theses Dissertations only Master's theses only

KEYWORDS UMI's dissertation database is accessed by a search for keywords in the dissertation title. The number of relevant citations retrieved depends largely on your keyword strategy. For best results, follow the procedure below:

1 Write 1 to 3 keywords from your research topic that might appear together in the dissertation titles in our database (e.g., "Nursing Burnout"). A keyword can also be numeric ("1980") or alphanumeric ("B12"). Only dissertation titles containing all the words you list on a single line can be retrieved.

2 To avoid having to list all possible word endings for a keyword, simply write the root word and an asterisk. One or more complete words must follow the root word on the same line (e.g., "Nurs*", "Burnout" would search for words such as "nurse, nurses, and nursing" which appear in the same titles as "burnout").

3 Use the other lines for synonyms and alternate words and spellings (e.g., "RN; LPN; BSN").

4 Modify words likely to appear in hundreds of titles with more specific words.

5 If appropriate, use the right-hand column to list keywords that exclude data you don't want. (e.g., "Nurs", "Home" and "Nurs", "Homes" would exclude titles relating to nursing homes or home nursing. Note that the computer recognizes no word order.)

SUBJECT CATEGORIES (optional) Each citation title is listed in UMI's dissertation database in a subject category chosen by the author. On the opposite page is a complete listing of subject categories and codes. List the categories (and codes) most relevant to your research topic.

CODE	CATEGORY

DEGREE DATES (optional) You may narrow the database search to certain years or time periods (e.g., "1980 through 1983"). This is especially recommended for broad categories such as "Education, Administrative", for which nearly 1,200 titles are added each year.

INSTITUTIONS AWARDING DEGREES (optional) You may restrict the search to dissertations and master's theses prepared for specific institutions (e.g., "New York University and UCLA").
